VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The International Control Commission, barred from operating within lines of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, plans to send a truce team today or Thursday to the neutralist side in the troubled Plain des Jarres.

Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma announced Tuesday this one-sided effort for peace. The neutralist leader said the commission's observers—representing Canada, India and Poland—can at least see "who is firing the rifle shots."

LULL IN SHOOTING

There has been a 48-hour lull in the shooting, but heavier fighting threatened. Rightist Gen. Phoumi Nosavan said he would send his regulars into action as allies of the outnumbered neutralists if the Pathet Lao completed its conquest of the plain, a strategic plateau 118 miles north of Vientiane, the Laos capital.

BATTALIONS DROPPED

The Pathet Lao broadcast from the interior asserted that two of Phoumi's crack paratroop battalions had been dropped in the Plain des Jarres area Monday and Tuesday.

Other developments Tuesday:

● Units of the mighty U.S. 7th Fleet were reported moving to the South China Sea area off the Gulf of Siam as a precaution against a Communist takeover of the Bay of Bengal.

● U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, fresh from urgent consultations with French authorities about the Laos situation, sped to London for similar talks with the British.

● The Soviet government newspaper Dnevnik said the British had rejected a Russian proposal that Britain join the Soviet Union in charging the U.S. with fanning tensions in Laos.

● Military consultations were resumed at headquarters of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Bangkok, Thailand.

● The U.S. attack carrier Ticonderoga and the guided-missile destroyer Robinson were two days out of Manila Bay on an unannounced mission.

Women Dismayed At A-Plans

MONTREAL (CP)—The Voice of Women says it means "with deep dismay" that the Canadian government is preparing the people for immediate acceptance of nuclear weapons.

The group said in a statement Tuesday night that acceptance of nuclear arms would limit Canada's foreign policy and lose the confidence of neutral and uncommitted nations.

There have been demonstrations "in many of the world's capitals" urging Canada to refuse nuclear weapons, the statement said.

Biculturalism Top Issue

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. A. W. Trueman, director of the Canada Council, said Tuesday night that "the overhauling of the constitution" to reconcile the English and French elements is the top issue facing Canada.

"It is my considered opinion that we cannot go on any longer as we are," he told the University Women's Club of Toronto. "I believe that the major issue that confronts Canada today is... the reconciling of the French and English elements in our population and the overhauling of the constitution in relation to that problem."

Dr. Trueman said constitutional reform is more important than nuclear armament, unemployment or the general position of the economy—important though these issues are.

"The unsatisfactory relations between the two language groups resulted from faults on both sides, but today it was the responsibility of the English to make the next move."

"We deceive ourselves if we think we can shrug it off as I am inclined to think we have shrugged it off for nearly 200 years."

Troops Wound Students

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Heavily armed Bedouin troops Tuesday fired on students demonstrating against King Hussein in the heart of Amman.

European witnesses said at least two youths were wounded in the encounters, which apparently erupted when the students stood the troops.

The firing came as the desert-toughened units chased hundreds of screaming students who were trying to organize riots in favor of United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Reports of sporadic firing on Amman outskirts were reported Tuesday night.

The cable from United Press International correspondent Ray Moloney was censored at this point, the only remaining words being "Diplomatic sources say about 12 killed."

Earlier King Hussein rejected all efforts to remove him from power.

Pearson Challenges Future

LIBERAL HAILS EXCITING DAYS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday night he welcomes the challenges that lie ahead of him and his new Liberal government.

"It will not be an easy time but it will, I pledge you, be a time to excite the daring, to test the strong and to give new promise to the timid," he said in an address broadcast the day after assuming office.

Mr. Pearson, noting that his government lacks a majority of Commons seats, said he is resolved not to allow this "to influence the government in any way that will weaken its action for you."

NOT AVOID ISSUES
"We will not be seeking to evade any issues, to avoid any votes in Parliament. We will not be seeking any special deals. We will breach no trust, harbor no principles."

Reviewing the period ahead for Parliament, which meets May 18, Mr. Pearson promised to have legislation ready to provide a framework within which Canadians can work to improve prosperity, increase employment and production and create better opportunities and greater security.

TAKING ACTION
"Above all, we will be taking action to heal the strains and tensions within our country," he said.

"The axis of our nation is the partnership of English- and French-Canadians on which our federal system was founded."

He paid a special tribute to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, saying, "Mr. Diefenbaker has served Canada for many years with patriotic devotion." He wished him well in his new role as opposition leader.

The new government, he said, asks the understanding, co-operation and prayers of Canadians, pledging "to do everything we can, in every way we can, to protect and promote your true interests."

DO WHAT IS BEST
He added:
"A government cannot achieve that purpose merely by doing what will produce the most obvious results today. . . .

"We have to do what is best for today but also what will contribute most to the long-term well-being and progress of our country—dealing with problems before they become crises; setting opportunities before they disappear."

WORK TOGETHER
Noting that he will be flying to London in a few days to meet Prime Minister Macmillan, Mr. Pearson said he wants to discuss ways in which Canada and Britain "can work together to improve the trading relations and the political relations of the free countries of the world."

Of his subsequent visit to Washington, Mr. Pearson said Canada and the United States can do much together for mutual benefit and for the benefit of the world.

"I want to make sure that the two governments understand each other."

As is customary, the composition of the new cabinet committee on economics and employment was not announced. Mr. Pearson also announced:

1. A royal commission on biculturalism will be set up "with the least possible delay."

2. He plans to confer with Mr. Pearson, Minister Macmillan, London next week, and a week after his return he hopes to meet President Kennedy. While overseas, he hopes to spend at least one night with Canadian friends in Europe.

STARTS EARLY
It was up and to work early for Mr. Pearson on his first full day as prime minister. He was at the East Block and behind the desk vacated Monday by Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker before most of the prime minister's office staff arrived.

His first telephone call was to government house, to convey birthday greetings to Governor-General Vanier through the Governor-General's secretary, Edmund Butler. Both Gen. Vanier, 76, and Mr. Pearson were born on St. George's Day.

Out from Windsor Castle went the Queen, Prince Philip and 51 guests, all piled into two buses to wind through picturesque Berkshire countryside.

Destination for the party, most of them of European royal or former royal families, was the Hind's Head Inn at Bray. There they had cocktails, fresh lobster, roast lamb, truffle tart with fresh cream, cheese and coffee.

Space around Westminster Abbey, meanwhile, was already at a premium.

Bea's youngsters who "twisted" the hours away, small children and middle-aged housewives staked claims on vantage-points for the wedding procession.

Not all were Londoners, nor even natives of these Isles. First on the scene was Mrs. Lyall Ramsay of Sydney, Australia.

What of the couple for whose wedding they're assembled?

Taschereau Appointed Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP)—Robert Taschereau, 66, judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, was appointed Tuesday as chief justice of Canada.

Also on Tuesday, Prime Minister Pearson nominated Alan Macnaughton, 59, Liberal MP for Montreal Mount Royal, as Commons Speaker for the 26th Parliament.

Chief Justice Taschereau succeeds Chief Justice Patrick Kavanagh who died Feb. 2 after heading the court since July 1, 1961.

The new chief justice had been next in seniority, appointed to the Supreme Court Feb. 9, 1960. He is a native of Quebec City, educated at Quebec Seminary and Laval University, and admitted to the bar July 8, 1920.

He practiced law in Quebec until his Ottawa appointment. Honorary secretary of the Canadian Bar Association from 1934 to 1941, Chief Justice Taschereau holds several honorary degrees and was created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor by France.

His elevation leaves a vacancy on the nine-member court.

A Montreal lawyer with wide business interests, Mr. Macnaughton is also former Crown prosecutor for the city and district of Montreal. He was the first opposition MP ever to serve as chairman of the Commons public accounts committee.

Mr. Macnaughton is a native of Napanee, Ont., and studied at Upper Canada College and McGill University. He is fluently bilingual and is well liked among Commons members.

Mr. Pearson and the premier should get together on policy or appoint someone to determine it on their behalf," he said, suggesting the senior government call the meeting.

He was commenting on a suggestion in Ottawa by Northern Affairs Minister Laing that the Columbia development be given top priority.

Mr. William saw in Mr. Laing's remarks a possibility that any changes in the treaty might be accomplished with an exchange of notes, rather than renegotiation.

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Rusk has been urged to press the new Canadian government for early action on the long-stalled Columbia River power treaty.

The call came from Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who pleaded for swift Canadian ratification of the treaty or new negotiations.

Jimmy Crow Visits the Taylors

Pet Crow Better Not

By JACK FEY

Seamich police will have to get up early in the morning if they want to shoot a crow which allegedly has been bothering neighborhood children on Homer Road.

One-year-old Jim Crow, who sleeps in the basement at 230 Homer, is a mighty suspicious little character at the best of times.

It took a Colonel photographer 20 minutes yesterday to get the crow into a picture, and Jim Crow might fly a lot faster if he saw a pistol-pointing policeman.

Mrs. John Taylor, at whose home the crafty black bird lives, said yesterday that the police came knocking at their door because neighbors complained the bird was a nuisance.

Chickens Killed

Five killed more than 150 chickens and destroyed a brooder house in West Saanich early Tuesday.

Among the birds lost was a pair of prize-winning Leghorns which owner Adrian Gilmore, 6936 Old West Saanich Road, was preparing to show at the PNE. He said total damage to birds and the brooder was about $700.

Firemen said the blaze started at about 11:45 a.m. from an overhauled old burner in the brooder.

A claim for damages against Oak Bay councillor Fred Robinson over the sale of a house in Oak Bay was dismissed in B.C. Supreme Court Monday by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton.

Arthur S. Gilmore and Dr. Pauline Bergeoff-Gilmore claimed damages of $2,312, contending the roof of a house which he sold them was "so rotten it had to be entirely renovated."

Mr. Justice Wootton said Mr. and Mrs. Robinson built the house for themselves and lived in it before the sale. "They were not aware of any defect in the roof and consequently any assurance about the roof would have been innocently made."

Your Good Health

Patient Has Right To Second Opinion

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: How does a patient get his doctor that she would like another opinion before undergoing an operation?

Every patient has the right, if there's a doubt in his mind, to ask for another doctor's opinion, or to have a consultation called in, which is in principle much the same thing. It is a matter of getting another doctor's thinking on the case at hand.

There should be no hesitancy on the part of either the patient or the doctor to discuss this question matter-of-factly.

TELL DOCTOR

Say to your doctor: "I trust and respect you, but I'd also feel better if I had another opinion on this before we go ahead."

There is no reason, morally or logically, why any doctor should object or feel hurt. Most don't. Some may be over-sensitive and get huffy. They shouldn't.

Frankly, I do not approve of a patient trying to get another opinion secretly. Tell your doctor you want to do it. Tell the other doctor what you are doing—that doesn't mean that you have to tell him what the first doctor decided. You want a fully independent opinion!

Generally speaking, the findings of the two doctors will be in accord. There may, however, be differences of opinion sometimes as to when to operate. But after you have heard the opinion of the two doctors (in some cases even more, perhaps) you will at least have a pretty sound basis of knowing whether they agree, fundamentally, and that the difference is mostly in how long it is safe to wait.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to handle things belonging to a person who has open cancer on the outside of his hands and feet?—T.F.

Cancer is not transmissible in that way. Simple hygiene should be observed—washing your hands with soap and water after attending the patient. This, however, is not because of the cancer, but because the open areas may become infected with common germs, and you naturally want to avoid such infections.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife has been treated for non-function of the adrenal glands. Her pulse does not seem to go higher than 13 and her temperature is usually 97 degrees. Would this have any bearing?—F.N.

A pulse of 75 and temperature of 97 are both quite normal. Not average—but normal. It's change that phrase about non-function of the adrenal glands. They may be underactive, but if they didn't function, she'd have much more serious symptoms.

Music Festival Fills Halls

By HERT BINNY

The Greater Victoria music festival took on a lively air last night when St. Andrew's Kirk Hall was crowded to the doors for the vocal and piano session.

The opening class for children's choirs was won by the Vera Barclay primary studio choir with 178/200 points. Runners-up were the 5th North Brownies with 160 points.

ENCHANTING
Next came the class which enchanted audience and adjudicators alike—family ensembles.

The Abbott family offered Bach's Jesu, Joy and Treasure and were followed by Pat, Anne, Bill and Susan Patterson with The Ash Grove and Augustine.

"Charming!" said adjudicator, Dr. Sydney Northcote. "Simply charming!"

The Patterson family was declared the winners with 80 points and the Abbott family had 67.

Rosalie Conner, Pamela Paver and Margaret Christman next competed in the finale of the operatic solo class for female voices. Miss Paver won with Adieu, Fare, from Jeanne d'Arc. Second was Margaret Christman and third Rosalie Conner.

ALL-AGE GROUPS
The piano sonata championship was contested by winners from all five age divisions. The winner was junior student Frances Crampin. Runners-up were Becky Jay (see below).

There was also an evening session in speech arts at Woodsworth Hall which produced some outstanding performers.

Jennifer Bell scored two 90s and Timothy Vernon had 93 and 94. Brian Wilkinson and Timothy Vernon both scored 85s.

18 CLASSES
The speech arts division yesterday ran off 18 classes in all. Outstanding in the morning were performances by speech choirs from Mount Newton Junior Secondary School. Competing against one another, their Drama 10 Class scored 90 and 85 and their Drama Club had a pair of 85s.

Victoria West School, Grades 3 and 6, Division 1, gathered two 85s and Grade 1 from St. Margaret's had 85 and 84. Grade 4 from George Jay School scored 86 and 85. The adjudicator was Mrs. Joan Pearce of Vancouver.

CHIMEL OUT WORDS
"I heard a lot of nice voices," said vocal adjudicator Dr. Sydney Northcote, "but there is a rather prevalent tendency to chime out words at the cost of the musical phrase."

Singer Roy Silver, who achieved a high mark of 86 Monday, repeated the feat in the low voice solo class. Strong competition came from Miss Frances Scott in the soprano solo class. She also chalked up 86, as also did Laura Groop in the 12 and 13-year-old divisions.

BACH WINNER
In the piano section, young Becky Jay, who won the Bach championship and a bursary Monday, almost won the Bar E. Spencer award for the highest mark in sonata classes. Her mark was 83.

But junior competitor Frances Crampin scored 86 in the sonata class to win the Spencer award.

Cheryl Borris, defeated by Norman Abbott in the Performers' Bach class Monday, winning the sonata class.

The 90 per cent, earned by Mount Newton's Drama 10 Class in speech arts in the morning, was exceeded during the afternoon when Rickie Stamford scored 93, highest mark in the festival so far.

An anonymous award of $30 for the winner of Class 60, girl's solo, ages 12 and 13, was won by Laura Groos, with her sister Madeleine a single point behind.

The Henry Birks Prize for the highest mark in piano concerto classes went to Cheryl Borris, at 80.

Two notable clames in the vocal section were heard on the afternoon program at St. Andrew's Kirk Hall.

Pamela Paver took first place among six contestants in the class for Bach sacred solos. She was warmly praised by Dr. Northcote "for the most skilful control, for sensitive phrasing and for outstanding appeal."

THREE IN FINALS
The class for oratorio solos by female voices listed 12 competitors. Three were selected to sing in the finals tomorrow evening.

The successful performers were Heather Tucker, Marion Maichem and Margaret Christman.

Four Flee Prison

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI)—Four hardened criminals, two of them convicted murderers, escaped from the maximum security section of the largest U.S. prison.

State police rushed into the area around Southern Michigan Prison to bolster city and county law officials who immediately sealed off all roads leading out of the area. Flares and dogs were brought into the search and the state department of corrections immediately launched an investigation into the break.

It was only the second escape by more than a single inmate from the maximum security portion of "Jacks-jaw."

Gagliardi on Probe:

'They Put Me on Rack—For Big Goose Egg'

EDMONTON (UPI)—Highways Minister Gagliardi had some harsh words Monday night for the instigators of a probe into serious allegations against his department.

Mr. Gagliardi, here to discuss a new highway route with Alberta and B.C. officials, said: "They just put me on the torture rack for seven weeks, you know. They searched through hundreds of road contracts and finally came up with one which they thought might hang me. 'What did they come up with? A big goose egg,' he said. 'Nothing. Absolutely nothing.'"

Mr. Gagliardi said there was only one thing that distressed him about public life and that was "the tragic below-the-belt type of attack made by men who seek party advancement."

He said integrity should stop any politician from making "attacks on personality in any manner of controversy."

'Royal Deadbeats' Rapped in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Mirror stinging attacks "royal deadbeats" attending the wedding here Wednesday of Princess Alexandra and wealthy businessman Angus Ogilvy.

Hiding out at members of Europe's former royal families, the 4,000,000-circulation newspaper asks in an editorial: "What's going on?"

FUELITY CAMPAIGN
It goes on to ask whether the wedding of the 36-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth and the son of a titled Scottish family is a "marriage between two popular young people" or a publicity campaign for "Europe's busted-down, pensioned-off, forgotten but not buried ex-royals from Austria, Spain and Italy."

ROYAL EXILES
The Mirror adds: "Why should the Alex-Angus romance degenerate into a rollicking romp at Windsor (a pre-wedding ball was held at Windsor Castle Monday night) for royal exiles, pensioners and pensioners? Is this the welfare state or the royal welfare morgue?"

"Of all people, the Count of Paris is here—the fellow who laughingly calls himself the head of the French royal house."

SACKED YEARS AGO
"Why should the British public be expected to howl to these royal deadbeats who were sacked by their own people years ago?"

In Athens, Greek newspapers criticized British authorities for permitting demonstrations against Queen Frederika, in London for Princess Alexandra's wedding.

POOR PROTECTION

But the foreign ministry refused to confirm or deny a newspaper report that the Greek government had sent a strong protest to the British government saying "measures adopted by the British authorities to protect Queen Frederika are inadequate."

SILENT PROTEST

The newspaper Eleftheria asked whether in view of the demonstrations—a silent protest on behalf of Greek political

'Flubber' Toys Safe

OTTAWA—Dr. John Murphy, chief medical officer for the federal food and drug directorate, said medical authorities do not believe U.S.-produced toys made of silicone-like "flubber" represent any danger to children. The health department said earlier the toys may cause a mild form of dermatitis or skin inflammation among some children.

Tale of Ordeal

Guard Didn't Think He'd Last the Night

By STEPHEN SCOTT

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CPI)—Uncomfortable in the glare of publicity he thought unnecessary, guard Patrick Dennis told Tuesday how his life hung in balance for 14 hours while three prisoners bargained around him.

"I never thought I would live through the night," said the quiet-spoken 35-year-old father of two, a guard at the British Columbia federal penitentiary.

Later, however, he said he could not answer a question as to whether he felt death was certain during the grim overnight ordeal in the penitentiary Friday.

REJECTED SWITCH

He also said that during the night he rejected a plan that would have seen Jack Webster, local radio commentator who spent many hours mediating between the men and penitentiary officials, exchanged for him as hostage.

Mr. Dennis, obviously uncomfortable as he sat in the warden's chair during a press conference at the penitentiary, said an adding machine could not total up all the times he was threatened throughout the night.

"There is a sign in the officers' quarters (of the penitentiary) that says 'Don't sit there. Worry' ... This kept flying through my head throughout the night."

The guard said he was grabbed by three convicts—Gerard Calasey, Wayne Carlson and Nelson Bernard Wood—as he checked the shower room adjacent to the auditorium.

He said the prisoners attempted to escape after tying him up but something happened outside that drove them back. Calasey was badly burned by a "so-called Molotov cocktail" and the pain must have affected his mental state.

In Vancouver Tuesday city council voted to send a letter of commendation to Mr. Webster.

Mayor William Rathie said "on this occasion Jack Webster performed a public service beyond the call of a news reporter."

NEW WESTMINSTER (UPI)—Warden Tom Hall said Tuesday the three convicts who bargained their transfer to other penitentiaries would be punished for their actions. He mentioned the us or sinister" about the deep shelters. Macmillan said in reading his reply to the questions. The scheme was similar to that set up in the last years of the Second World War.

Their existence, he said, was "widely known" before but their exact locations and other details were not known publicly.

The fact that this information had leaked through the security barrier was "serious and strongly to be condemned," but steps were being taken to tighten security arrangements and inquiries were continuing into how the information got out.

Safeway Burglar Fails in Jury Plea

Larry Alan Preston was found guilty by an assize court jury yesterday of breaking and entering the Town & Country Safeway Jan. 6 "with intent to commit an indictable offence." He was remanded in custody for sentence and still is to be tried on two other charges.

In summing up his case Preston, who defended himself, told the jury the Crown had produced no witnesses or physical evidence to incriminate him.

"To my knowledge it is not illegal to accompany a friend downtown to purchase tools," he said.

He was referring to a shopping trip he had made with David Daniel Frankham Jan. 4 during which they purchased an electric drill, brace and bit, grappling hook and other items.

Frankham testified Monday these articles were used in breaking into the supermarket and Preston was with him at the time. Frankham pleaded guilty to the charge in January and is serving 14 months definite and four months indeterminate on that and five other charges.

NO WORD OR MINE

"No one but Frankham has said I was there," Preston told the jury. "No one saw me enter. No one saw me in the store. No one saw me leave. It's Frankham's word against mine."

Crown prosecutor Alan Baker made no summation to the jury, which is customary when the accused is defending himself.

The New Cabinet

THERE WILL be a disposition on all sides to wish Mr. Pearson and his cabinet well as they assume the direction of the nation's affairs. Government of the country must go on and it is incumbent on Parliament as a whole to see that it does in spite of the minority position of the Liberal administration.

To a degree the prime minister will be dependent on the grace of the opposition parties and this will limit the full expansion of measures he has in mind, but while fulfilling their role of vigilant watchdogs of government policy there can be no thought of overt action of the kind which upset the Diefenbaker regime mainly for partisan purposes.

The country is in no mood for, nor can it afford another election at an early date. Mr. Pearson will have to be enabled to carry on for at least a reasonable period of time, after which no doubt he will desire at the polls to bid for the majority status that removes any dependent inhibitions.

Mr. Pearson has been able to call on four other colleagues with previous ministerial experience, always a distinct asset in forming a government, and has had at his disposal a coterie of other Liberals with senior civil service records or associate government roles to name to his cabinet. These with newcomers yet to be tested in administrative capacities would seem to form the best ministry open to him and it is one which until it proves otherwise must be regarded with respect.

It is the convention and necessary political practice that cabinet posts be spread around the country, with representation from all provinces. In the result the lone Alberta Liberal member must consider himself fortunate in gaining recognition, while Saskatchewan, not having elected any Liberals, perforce is absent from the cabinet. It is the prairie content of the new administration where weakness may be noted.

By contrast 10 out of the 26 ministers are of French-Canadian heritage compared with six in the outgoing government, a ratio that should appease much Quebec sentiment and patently will encourage the Liberal cause in that province. In total the Pearson cabinet is the largest in Canadian history, so that no little will be expected of it.

In experience, religion, vocation and armed services record Mr. Pearson has obviously endeavored to balance his ministry consistent with availability and the posts to be filled, not an easy task for any prime minister with as many factors to be borne in mind. How well he has been able to build a strong and unified team is something that will be proved as the new ministers come to grips with their responsibilities.

Many grave problems warrant the immediate attention of the Pearson regime and without vitiating their own legitimate freedom of action the opposition groups can afford to give the needed latitude to test the merits of this new Canadian government.

Visible Progress

THE DECISION of the city hall committee in charge of planning the Centennial Square development to call tenders for a start on demolition of unwanted buildings on the site in a month or so is gratifying. Physical progress on the creation of the new civic centre seems to have been a long time in coming.

This is not to criticize the mayor and aldermen, the staff engaged in planning and preparation or the citizens who are lending their advice and help. Eight months have gone by since the Centennial Square was chosen to commemorate Victoria's 100th birthday as a corporation, with only the removal of one service station to see so far as a result. But no one would want the design to suffer through undue haste, and it will be generally appreciated how great an amount of detail must be worked out.

The lack of visible activity over such a long period inevitably leads to dull interest, at least for the great majority of citizens not personally engaged in helping to create this future source of community pride.

It is well therefore that there will soon be something material to take the passing eye, especially so since a resurgence of enthusiasm should make it none too difficult for senior citizens' groups to raise the share of money needed in donations from the public for the recreation facilities and should likewise encourage subscription to the fund started for the furnishing of the civic playhouse.

The Truth at Last

THOUGH THE QUESTION of Canada's acquisition of nuclear arms may well be taken as having been conclusively settled by the recent election and the matter may no longer be considered important enough for either partisan debate or individual opinion, a single—perhaps final—observation on the issue appears called for at this time.

It is this: The Liberal Party largely fought its near-successful election campaign on its vehement claim that the former Conservative government had fully committed Canada to equipping its air squadrons and Bomarc missiles with American nuclear warheads and was therefore abandoning its duty in not accepting them. Mr. Diefenbaker, with equal force, denied that this was so, staunchly asserting that Canada had lived up to all her obligations under both NORAD and NATO.

It was obvious throughout the whole campaign that either one side or the other was deliberately attempting to mislead the public. Perhaps the statement made Monday by the new Liberal defence minister, Mr. Paul Hellyer, has at last provided the answer as to who was right and who was wrong.

In an interview shortly after being sworn in, Mr. Hellyer said that he expected a Canada-United States agreement on custody and control of nuclear warheads to be signed in about a month's time.

After the agreement was signed, Mr. Hellyer said, the Bomarc and the RCAF Voodoo jet-interceptors could then be equipped with nuclear warheads. This, he added, might take some months.

It would therefore seem that Mr. Hellyer has now at last discovered that an agreement between the United States and Canada is necessary before Canada becomes obligated to accept nuclear weapons—an agreement which requires both Parliamentary ratification and Congressional approval as well as the signatures of the contracting parties.

As his former government had never been a party to such an agreement Mr. Diefenbaker's assertion still stands unchallenged. It was, after all, he who told the truth. It remained but for the Liberal defence minister to prove it beyond all doubt.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sailing war ...
By TOM TAYLOR

MR. PEARSON has taken over and the mountain of problems facing him would be enough, no doubt, to make him grow bald quicker than, probably, he would like.

But he asked for it, as all prime ministers do else they wouldn't possess those prized PM initials and likely enough he has a sense of personal destiny. If they hadn't political leaders couldn't carry on.

They need a larger ego than most of us; they couldn't be sustained without it.

Among his election promises was one to get to the roots of the dual anthem-flag impasse that periodically erupts into prominence. This might have been one of those self-the-sufficing rhetorical things that in the heat of a campaign a politician throws off and so we needn't hold it against him.

Although if he could settle even these two matters his name would go up in neon lights, and, maybe, they would be a pointer to the Canadian unity always talked about.

Incidentally I have been hearing about this duality ever since I came to these shores forty-odd years ago, and the nation has still prospered. Happily enough countries which are supposed to be going to the dogs often never get there.

But I should suppose that even with the best of intentions flags and anthems run a poor priority with economic crises and nuclear arms.

We have two anthems and two flags, but it's the special Canadian ones, "O Canada" and the Red Ensign that still have to be reconciled to popular opinion.

A reader sends along a letter wondering why the agitation for a change of flag, for instance, which is easy enough of explanation. It's simply that some people don't think the present flag appropriate, hence the 1,000 suggested designs said to be in an Ottawa pigeon hole.

Along with the letter comes an article pointing to the mixed bag of symbols gathered in the Red Ensign, which in truth seems to cover the field. English, Irish, Scots, French—these early influences in the making of Canada are all there in the coat-of-arms in the fly together with the Maple Leaf.

Something I didn't know about the Maple Leaf is that there is historic evidence, apparently, that the wood of the maple tree was taken to Europe by the Vikings ten centuries ago, which would make it the most Canadian symbol of all.

Mr. Pearson could possibly persuade Ontario to fall in line and sing "O Canada" as lustily as the rest of us, not that we sing it with the verve it deserves. More awkward it is to solve the flag issue with a front to neither Canadian nor Canadian.

One way to get out of the impasse might be a discreet referendum question, to wit: "Do you favor or not the retention of the Red Ensign?"

But national referendums don't seem to be popular, although it should help any prime minister trying to grapple with this particular conundrum in the body national.

Perhaps not. If the Red Ensign is out what takes its place? A prime minister could serve a lifetime without ever solving that one.

There are already 1,000 extant alternatives, remember.

The Packstack

ONE OF my relations has newly bought a sloop, a small sailing craft. This has caused great interest and excitement among our circle of family and friends. It is with-out reservation of any kind that I confess that the whole thing leaves me cold. If there is any experience more interesting than sitting in a small sailboat on a lake in particular and with no thought in mind but going gurgly-slap-gurgly-bump over miles of empty water, you name it.

My trouble, I suppose is a form of claustrophobia. I feel a helpless and suffocating sense of isolation on a sailboat that is merely sailing. All around is nothing but water, surely the least interesting of the elements unless there are fish in it, and you after them. Just water, all the same color, all the same shape. Now and again, a gull comes wandering by, with that sense of hopelessness characteristic of gulls. One gull is much the same as any other gull.

And every minute, the land, the blessed land, full of thousand, a million interests in every nook and cranny of it, no two aspects of it the same, draws farther and farther away.

I do not expect to be involved in the new sloop.

In Latin-American Countries

Military Coups Ahead

By WILLIAM GIANDONI

UNLESS the extremists beat them to the punch, Latin American armies, navies and air forces can be expected to execute new military coups in this hemisphere.

Trouble appears virtually certain in Brazil, in the Dominican Republic, and in Venezuela where civilian governments appear to be crumbling. Communist or to be less than wholehearted in their efforts to eradicate the Communist menace.

In both Peru and Argentina, new coups can be expected either to prevent elections that extremists seem likely to win or to keep them where the military considers extremist from taking office.

The pattern of preventive military coups that emerged first last year in Argentina, that was continued in Peru in Guatemala and, again, in Argentina is a reflection of Latin anti-Communist loathing of faith in the United States government.

The feeling among many Latin Americans, including responsible observers in Mexico, El Salvador, Chile and other countries not yet directly affected by the heightening cold war in the hemisphere, is that what they call the United States refusal to face up to Communist encroachment and domination of Cuba means that they must go it alone to defend themselves.

Start where you want in the history of U.S.-Latin American relations since Fidel Castro rose to power in Cuba and Latin try to show you that the United States has failed in its obligations as leader of the hemisphere.

Failure to insure success of the Cuban exile invasion at the Bay of Pigs in mid-April, 1961, was the first glaring evidence of U.S. disinclination to take a stand against Communism in the hemisphere, they say.

Latin hopes rose during the Cuban crisis of October, 1962, over the Soviet military buildup. But they plummeted when Castro came to realize that what most worried the Kennedy administration were the Russian missiles zoned in on Washington. Circumstantial evidence that President Kennedy reached an "understanding" with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev during that period appalled the Latins.

They wanted to believe that President Kennedy's offer to Khrushchev on Oct. 27 "to give assurances against an invasion of Cuba" and the president's expression of confidence "that other nations of the Western Hemisphere would be prepared to do likewise" were really conditioned on neutralization of the Communist threat in the Caribbean.

But then came President Kennedy's meeting with the presidents of the five Central American countries and Panama in March in Costa Rica. The Central Americans, who feel themselves menaced by the Castro-Communist dictatorship, went away from that conference convinced that the United States will not take the lead in any hemisphere effort to drive Communism from the Caribbean.

That there are plots and counter-plots under way in many countries can be sustained easily.

Supporters and opponents of Brazilian President Joao Goulart himself recently intervened with his War Minister Amaury Kruel to prevent the disciplinary arrest of a general who had offered army guards to protect a left-wing rally in Rio de Janeiro against police.

As a result of public policy given the incident, Brazilian police observers are predicting the removal of the anti-Communist war minister and the rise of the leftist general as the cabinet post.

In the Dominican Republic, President Bosch is hard at work trying to counter the efforts of the AFL-CIO to help set up a Dominican labor movement modeled on U.S. lines. Bosch wants urban labor to be organized under the leadership of his own Dominican Revolutionary Party (PRD) which is headed by a former secretary to Mexican Marxist-Leninist Vicente Lombardo Talamas.

At the same time, Bosch's organizers are preaching class warfare to the peasants and trying to cow, if not obtain outright control of, the two remaining independent newspapers in the country.

What worries many Latins is the tangible aid—promise of up to $300 million to the Brazilian government and pledges of whatever assistance is needed to the Dominican Republic—that the United States is offering these two.

Tensions appear higher in Brazil where the Communist infiltration process is further along. But there are two important, unanswered questions there. Will the armed forces take action to prevent establishment of a dictatorship? And, if anti-Communist officers decide to move, will they find that the Goulart government has so undermined their authority as to have rendered them impotent?

In the Dominican Republic, people who fought against the tyranny of Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo and the military machine he set up now privately voice hopes those armed forces have not been so demoralized as to fail in their responsibilities to the fatherland.

Venezuelans are torn between their fears of the increasing centralization of the government and their desire that President Romulo Betancourt, no matter what his faults, finish his legally prescribed term and become the first popularly elected president in the country's history to do so. There is admittedly considerable infiltration of the armed forces in Venezuela but, though bombings, sabotage and street fighting might indicate otherwise, the military seems to believe it could step in and save the nation, if required.

The problems in Peru and Argentina are emotional, as well as political. In both countries, the armed forces generally detest the Peronist and AFPA movements, which appear to be able to command the largest single blocs of votes.

The Peronists in Argentina and the Apristas in Peru both are "mass movements," appealing to the labor classes. The armed forces claim to fear that their assumption of power would lead to popular dictatorships.

Hopefully, the majority of the Latin countries are relatively placid at this time. But, with the exception of Mexico, second in population only to Brazil and the only Latin country with its home-grown revolutionary doctrine, they are the smaller nations.

For the giants and the rest, there doesn't seem too much optimism in the future.

Psalm Revision

Dehydrated Prose

By CASSANDRA from London

THE Twenty-Third Psalm contains some of the best and measureless prose ever printed or uttered in the English language.

It also offers—and this is incidental to my argument—the most profound solace to those who are preying Christians and to those who, like St. Thomas to my mind, the best of all the Saints, find it hard to believe.

Now the Prayer Psalter has been revised and changed by a Commission appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury and York.

In my view, the great solemn, simple words of the Missa Coverdale translation of the Bible, which he finished in 1535, have become bordering by what is called "the invisible mending" of the new revised account of the Prayer Book Psalter.

Listen to the original version of the Twenty-Third Psalm:

"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."
Now come the word-trimmed and the phrase-minced. The latest altered version goes thus:

"The Lord is my Shepherd; Therefore can I lack nothing."

Did you hear that? The simplicity of "I shall not want" replaced by the cumbersome, posturing of "Therefore can I lack nothing."

The second verse of the untampered original ran thus: "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters."

The new do-it-yourself version says:

"He shall make me lie down in green pastures: and lead me forth beside the waters of comfort."

Even the fourth verse, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I am not afraid, for thou art with me," is inevitably mended to read: "Yea, though I walk through the darkest valley."

What a dilution! This is instant Bible. Watered down, milled, rationalized, dehydrated prose.

The Psalmist in newspaper parlance, has been subdued. But these sub-editors only blunt their shears when they try to trim the great original poetry of the Bible.

THE OTHER day they were firing dead chickens out of guns to test their effect on the windcrenses and fuselages of modern high-speed aircraft. The subject of birds—and pterodactyls before them—who have been flying for millions of years, versus aeroplanes who have been flying for a lot less than a century, is a serious one.

Geese and seagulls colliding with aeroplanes have been known to cause fatal accidents.

But the latest experiments for seeing how our feathered friends can bring down a hundred-ton jet-a-liner flying at 500 m.p.h., have the true twentieth-century deadly ring about them.

At Shepperton the other day they got the top part of the front section of the fuselage of a Trident airliner and mounted it on a railed trolley.

Give instructions to a wise man, and he will be wiser; teach a just man now, and he will increase in learning.—Proverbs, 9:9.

The track was constructed from ex-German V-1 firing ramps and carried the nose of the Trident forward at a speed of about 450 miles an hour.

Directly in the path, and hung up by wires in front of the onrushing fuselage was a 4-lb. chicken that had been freshly killed and carefully stuffed to make it the correct weight. Thirteen collision runs were made with a new dead chicken each time and the results of the impact on the Trident carefully analysed.

The windscreen of the Trident was slightly cracked.

The freshly killed 4-lb. chicken, who had died death Number One, were not harmed by the subsequent thirteen post-mortem examinations.

A wonderful, wonderful world, gentlemen.

AS THIS aging world with the nuclear sword of Damocles poised by an ever-sleazier threat above it grows more insecure, the "security," which means the precautions taken to prevent people knowing how nearly dead they can be, becomes even stricter.

In Washington they are holding a Senate inquiry into the awarding of the greatest military contract ever placed in peacetime, for an American TFX fighter-bomber, that will make the enemies of the United States finally and absolutely secure by slaying them by the millions with a rain of hydrogen bombs.

In the official report, the Chairman of the Senate Committee was questioning a certain General Ruess about the TFX.

The censored, doctored and unscrupulously printed dialogue after publication, went thus: The Chairman: "Let me get what you are talking about now. Point to the chart."

General Ruess: "The (blank) nuclear bombs, where we have (blank) and (blank) and the (blank) and the next one below that (blank) and (blank), and the (blank) missile."

It's lovely being in the deadly know.

HOW is it that, in spite of ever-increasing taxation for education, the language of the uneducated is being thrust daily upon us via TV, radio and, to a lesser degree, the popular press?

Words like "gain" and "do" lack the terminal "g" that completes them. "Do like I say" replaces the grammatically correct "do as I say."

People who never refer to a "telegram" or a "radio-gram" refer to a "program." The word "margarine" whose last syllable rhymes with "margarine" is pronounced "margarin." The letter "r" is fast disappearing from our vocabulary. "International" is pronounced "innernational." The name "Betty" becomes "Buddy."

Court Parade

Cheque Artist Jailed

A navy deserter who bilked Victoria merchants out of $3,000 through worthless cheques last month was sentenced in city magistrate's court yesterday to 18 months definite and six months indeterminate in the young offenders' unit at Oakalla.

Charles Henry Bird, of Hamilton, Ont., gave himself up to Vancouver police April 14 following a cheque-cashing spree in Victoria, March 29 and 30.

RINGS, CAMERAS
Bird bought diamond rings, cameras, clothing, shoes and luggage from downtown merchants using a navy identification card and cheques drawn on a fictitious bank account.

Two articles were pawned in Vancouver, the rest sold in beer parlors.

Before sentencing yesterday, Bird said he had given himself up because he was "afraid this pattern might continue."

He told Magistrate William Oulter he had an argument with the probation officer and that was why "only the bad prints" were brought out in his probation report.

TYPICAL OF LIFE
"That remark is typical of your whole life," Magistrate Oulter said.
"You have the shameless audacity to say that the country hasn't done anything for you. The country is only the private citizens, after all, and it would be a very poor country, indeed, that had to rely on citizens of your character."

R. F. Rogers, a salesman for Island Distributors Ltd., was fined $10 for failing to file a return for January under the Social Services Tax Act. He was also ordered to pay arrears of $788.98 by Aug. 16.

The Washington State Sports Council has asked for a meeting with the Amalgamated Conservation Society "to help bring about an understanding in the conservation of the fast diminishing runs of salmon," particularly coho.

The invitation to the ACS, which represents 20,000 lower Vancouver Island salmon fishermen, comes from Howard P. Gray, sports fisheries representative for the United States on the Pacific International Salmon Commission, which controls sockeye and pink (humpback) fishing in Juan de Fuca and Georgia Straits.

A special committee has been appointed by Washington State Sports Council president Tom Whinnery to meet with the Canadian ACS group. In his letter Gray suggests that Jim Murray, his Canadian counterpart on the Pacific International Salmon Commission advisory board, be invited to take part in the discussion.

The ACS has called for the resignation of Murray because of his conflict of interest as a member of a commercial fishing firm and his failure to attend a meeting to present the Amalgamated's views to the international commission.

But, in spite of the fact ACS has been rebuffed by the federal fisheries department in its efforts to get an equitable distribution of coho and spring salmon for sports fishermen, when it comes to international discussions the ACS should be wary.

The objective of ACS is to get a more equitable distribution of the salmon for sports fishermen. ACS delegates must be careful not to jeopardize the Canadian commercial fishermen.

Here is a key point in the letter from Page and ACS delegates should be fully informed on this matter before entering into international discussions.

"For a number of years we have tried to have the so-called Bonilla-Tucson line moved to a point much further in the straits in order to save these runs of silvers (coho) that are being subjected to pressure during the sockeye catch," says Gray.

"It has been interesting to note that in the past years many commercial fishermen have stated that the silvers (coho) they were catching were Canadian silvers and not American and that such should not concern us. Now we see by your brief (the ACS salmon brief), that the commercial fishermen state that they are catching American silvers. It seems to me that they are talking out of both sides of their mouth. While they are doing this, all of the salmon are diminishing.

"It has been evident by the past tagging operations that the coho in this area are destined to both American and Canadian streams and unless we do something soon for Mr. Salmon there won't be any for either sportsmen or commercial fishermen," Gray warns.

The Bonilla-Tucson line at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait was won by Canadian fishermen in hard negotiations with the United States. It shouldn't be jeopardized lightly, although it does seem commercial fishermen there are taking more than their fair share.

It is unfortunate the federal fisheries department doesn't change its attitude and be more co-operative to the wants of the sports fishermen.

The ACS wants more Canadian fish for more Canadian sports fishermen, and its deliberations should carry on a straight line towards that objective.

The Bonilla-Tucson line has initiated three years ago has surely changed the salmon catch distribution picture, with commercial emphasis placed at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait.

In 1959, before the present Bonilla line was operating to the extent it is now, sports fishermen in Juan de Fuca Strait-San Juan Inlet waters caught 3,000 coho in August, 5,200 in September.

Last year in the same waters they caught 825 coho in August and 875 in September, according to fisheries department sports catch statistics.

But last year commercial net fishermen at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait caught a net record 400,000 coho, as well as their quota of sockeye.

When commercial netters, who form a day and night fence across Juan de Fuca Strait two to three days a week and the fourth biggest catch since 1951 and behind that fence sports fishermen get a pittance, the smallest sports catch on record, SOMETHING IS WRONG with the distribution.

Canadian sportsmen want Canadian salmon, and they want some change in the netting rules to see that they get them. But their pleas fall on deaf ears in the fisheries department, which steadfastly refuses to allow credence to sports fishing arguments. Last year when the salmon commission relinquished control in September the federal fisheries department allowed five days of netting for coho, instead of two.

This year with a 5,000,000-fish pink run expected, netting at the Bonilla line are to be allowed one extra day a week, three days instead of last year's two, with no consideration being given to coho for sports fishermen.

Something should be done to adjust the netting regulations. Maybe seiners and gillnetters should operate on different days so fish have part of each day to get through... maybe gillnets should be left in the chain of nets... maybe fewer nets should be allowed.

Surely the federal fisheries will do something before Canadian sports fishermen start planning joint attacks with U.S. sports fishermen, a move which could end in detriment to Canadian commercial fishermen, something which no one on this side of the line wants to see happen.

Windsor Nears Allan Cup Title

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Bulldogs moved to within one victory of the Canadian hockey championship Tuesday night when they turned back a formidable Winnipeg Maroons challenge 3-0 in the third game of the Allan Cup final.

Bulldogs, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association and the East, could wrap up the first Dominion hockey crown for Windsor in its history tonight in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series.

Jerry Service in the second period and captain Lou Benda in the final session scored the Windsor goals with rookie Wayne Rutledge stopping 30 shots for the well-deserved shutout.

Maroons gave it a great try throughout the hard-checking game but Windsor's persistent checking time and again turned them back when nearing goal.

A crowd of 4,000 saw referee Dutch van Ijzelen hand out 18 minor penalties, nine to the Maroons.

Both teams had great opportunities to boost the score as the play opened up considerably in the final period but Rutledge and Collins were at their best, especially in the late moments.

Windsor's goalies—Clifford DeLoach, Wayne Rutledge, and Wayne Rutledge—were in top form, stopping 30 shots for the well-deserved shutout.

Cubs Get Their Pitching, But Can't Beat Schedule

Last season Chicago Cubs, the Cubs haven't until yesterday, found the hitting to take advantage of it.

In their first 14 games Cub pitchers allowed the opposition only 26 runs, yet took a 7-3 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday to balance the club record at 7-7. The Cubs have lost twice by 3-1, once by 1-0 and once by 3-4. Only in two games have the Cubs yielded more than three runs. In the other 12 the total was 16 runs.

Yesterday, the Cubs got more runs in one inning than they have in any previous game, hitting the Pirates by getting six runners across in the fourth, leading to give Jackson a big winning margin. Only 98 fans, smallest Pittsburgh crowd in 29 years, watched.

Nevertheless, it has been a great start for a club which was only 50 games in 1962 while losing 103. The crazy-quick schedule forced the Cubs to play six games each against the champion San Francisco Giants and runner-up Los Angeles Dodgers to start the season, and then follow up with a series against the Pirates, a good fourth last year and, until yesterday, by themselves in first place.

The Cubs went 3-3 against both the Giants and Dodgers, and 3-1 with Pittsburgh and face the knowledge the schedule can't help but get a bit easier soon.

Meanwhile, St. Louis Cardinals, who haven't had to face the Cubs yet, moved up with the Giants to share the lead.

Led by Ken Boyer (four hits) and Bill White (three hits), the Cardinals buried Houston Colts, 15-0, as comebacking Ernie Broglio pitched his second two-hit shutout of the season.

The hitting of Orlando Cepeda and Willie Mays and steady pitching by Juan Marchal gave the Giants a 4-3 win over Cincinnati Reds.

Los Angeles Dodgers could manage only two hits off Bob Shaw and Claude Raymond, but the last was a home run by Frank Howard with two out and bases empty to give them a 2-1 victory over Milwaukee Braves. Milwaukee got only four hits, one a homer by Hank Aaron.

Baltimore Orioles held on to their half-game lead in the American League, beating Minnesota Twins on five-hit pitching by Milt Pappas.

Pappas, now 2-0, struck out eight and didn't walk a man, getting the only run he needed in the second inning on singles by Brooks Robinson and Joe Garmon and a sacrifice fly by Jerry Adair.

Los Angeles Angels outlasted Washington Senators for a 5-4 victory, winning in the 10th when shortstop Jim Fregoso homered off Jim Coates, an ex-Yankee making his debut for Senators.

Ed Rakow turned in a masterful five-hit bid to give Kansas City a 3-1 victory over Detroit, striking out six of the first 10 batters he faced. For the second straight game, Ed Charles singled in the winning run for the As.

Canadian Chances For Gold Medal Dim As Star Loses

SAO PAULO, Brazil (CP-AP)—Kathleen Ellis of the United States won the gold medal in the women's 100-metre butterfly swim Tuesday, shading Canada's world record-holder, Mary Stewart of Vancouver, in the Pan-American Games. Kim Worsley of the U.S. was third.

Miss Ellis, a 16-year-old Indianapolis schoolgirl, trailed the 17-year-old Miss Stewart, gold medalist in the event at last year's British Empire Games, by about five feet at the 50-metre turn.

SPURTED AHEAD
But shortly after that, the tall American pulled even and assumed the lead about 125 feet from the finish.

From there to the windup, Miss Ellis gradually forged ahead and won by five feet in a stunning upset.

Miss Stewart, who holds the world record of 1:07.3, was considered Canada's brightest hope to win a gold medal in the Games that end May 5. She had easily won her qualifying heat Sunday, equalling the Games record.

From there to the windup, Miss Ellis gradually forged ahead and won by five feet in a stunning upset.

Miss Stewart, who holds the world record of 1:07.3, was considered Canada's brightest hope to win a gold medal in the Games that end May 5. She had easily won her qualifying heat Sunday, equalling the Games record.

But shortly after that, the tall American pulled even and assumed the lead about 125 feet from the finish.

Full Nine Innings Met Selling Point

By JACK MURPHY
(Copley News Service)

The plight of the hapless New York Mets recalls the popular banquet story about the football player who drew a homely and clumsy partner at the spring prom. Being kindly and generous of nature, the athlete was anxious to pay the lady a compliment before returning to the stag line.

After considering and rejecting a number of ideas that would have been obvious exaggerations or falsehoods, he was seized with an inspiration. "Miss Sugarcoat," he blurted, "I'd like to say you sweat less than any fat girl I've ever danced with."

CASEY NOT STUCK

Casey Stengel would understand. It requires similar ingenuity to dredge up a superlative about the worst team in baseball history, but Stengel is equal to the challenge. It's Casey's argument that those who patronize the Mets' home grounds at the Polo Grounds get more for their money than other fans in the major leagues.

"You see, we usually get the full nine innings," says the grizzled old manager of the Mets, eyes twinkling. "Lots of clubs in home games shortchange their fans by not going to bat in the last of the ninth." It seems safe to say that nobody gets as much pleasure from the misfortunes of the Mets than Bill Veck. He is a man who either hates or dislikes people in a big way, and on top of his hate list is George Weiss, general manager of the Mets.

JUSTICE REIGNS

Veck believes Weiss and the Mets are a perfect baseball union, a couple who richly deserve each other. "Last the reader feel I am picking unfairly on the Met general manager, let me explain," he writes in a foreword to Jim Breahn's new book, "Can't Anybody Here Play The Game."

"I am, intentionally. Mr. Weiss took the bows during a long and successful career with the Yankees. I would be the last to deprive him of equal rights with the Mets."

But Veck feels only compassion for Stengel and Mrs. Grace Payson, majority stockholder.

JUNGLE LAW

"In this game," Veck wrote, "when they're down you trump 'em — trump 'em good — but some day they rise up to annoy the winners." The Mets?

Boxer Loses To Modesty

TORONTO (UPI)—The next time amateur boxer Ray Marsh enters the ring he'll make sure his trunks stay up.

They kept slipping last night—and every time he reached down to hike them up, opponent John Thomas belted him. Thomas won on a decision.

Tuna Man Topped in 'Big Eat'

Grid Star Champion Trencherman

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Ernie Ladd, the biggest man in professional football, chewed his way through 19½ pounds of food Monday night to defend successfully his claim to the World Heavyweight Eating Championship.

Challenger Nick Cordileone, the hungriest man in the Pacific tuna fleet, conceded to Ladd after three hours and 15 minutes of "the big eat."

The 5-foot-9, 285-pound fisherman trilled the 6-foot-4, 321-pound San Diego Charger tackle by only five ounces at the final whistle.

The competitors crossed knives and forks on a raised platform before a noisy crowd of 1,500 spectators in the Palm Room of the U.S. Grant Hotel.

The contest was nip and tuck as they devoured lobster tails, tossed green salad, spaghetti and meat balls, assorted vegetables, mashed potatoes and roast prime rib. Ladd took a three-ounce lead during the fried chicken because his bowling-ball shaped tablemate left too much meat on the drumsticks.

Rulings were handed down by the five-member California State eating commission. The opponents ate in 30-minute spurts separated by 10-minute intermissions.

Ladd maintained his lead through the sirloin steaks, baked ham and layer cake and ice cream. Cordileone conceded as Ladd, mustering a closing burst of appetite, started on more rolls and butter and stretched his lead to five ounces.

As Ladd wobbled away from the table he was handed a telegram reading: "I can eat more than either of you..." It was signed Jackie Gleason.

Bonds, Power Deal Success in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage announced Tuesday the successful conclusion of two financial operations which were innovations for Quebec—the province's first issue of savings bonds and the government's take-over of private power companies.

He announced that sales of savings bonds have reached $170,000,000 and that the cabinet has set a new limit for the second time.

The new limit is $180,000,000. Sales stopped April 11 but reports from smaller centres still are coming in, he told the legislative assembly.

The interest paid on the bonds would be a new source of revenue to the people who bought them. This was "useful and necessary for the development of the province of Quebec."

In the announcement concerning the power take-over, Mr. Lesage's offer to seven private power company shareholders has been accepted by an immense majority. The average was 98.2 per cent.

Victorians Cool to TV

Percentage of Sets Lowest in 17 Cities

New statistics just released from the 1961 Canadian census show that Victoria is different in one field from the rest of Canada.

Of 17 major metropolitan areas across the nation, Greater Victoria and the adjacent Saanich Peninsula have the lowest percentage of television sets per number of homes.

Director Anthony Roberts said yesterday he had received the information in a census report entitled Living Conveniences.

The report was compiled from answers given by the one-out-of-ten persons queried by those conducting the census.

more TV sets in 27,583 dwelling units, representing 79 per cent of all the dwelling units in the area.

Of the other metropolitan areas, Sudbury had 90 per cent, Vancouver 82, Calgary 82, Edmonton 88, Halifax 85, Hamilton 84, Kitchener 84, London 88, Montreal 88, Ottawa 85, Quebec 89, St. John 87, St. John's 87, Toronto 85, Windsor 85 and Winnipeg 84.

Centennial Proposal:

Auditorium in '67

By IAN STREET

An auditorium to serve all Greater Victoria located on the Gordon Head campus of Victoria University was suggested yesterday as a joint 1967 centennial project for the four local municipalities.

Coun. G. K. Samson of Esquimalt told the intermunicipal committee that it was "not unrealistic" at this time to revive the proposal for a civic auditorium that had been talked about for years without action.

NOW OR NEVER

"If we don't do it now," he said, "it's quite likely that we will never do it."

Mr. Samson said the university campus has a place in its long-range scheme for an auditorium and the added advantage of a location with ample provision for parking.

OTHER SOURCES

The estimated $450,000 in centennial grants coming to the four local municipalities, Mr. Samson said, could be supplemented from other sources. He cited the case of the O'Keefe Centre auditorium in Toronto.

There was some discussion of other suggested projects, including development of the Gorge waterway and rebuilding of Royal Athletic Park as a centre for major sports events in the area. There appeared to be little enthusiasm for either.

OAK BAY HAS PLANS

Coun. Allan Cox said Oak Bay had some tentative plans under consideration for establishing its own centennial project, among them development of a new park on Henderson.

The magnitude of the Gorge project was such that the centennial grants would hardly amount to "a drop in the bucket" in relation to the massive costs involved he said.

WILL CO-OPERATE

Coun. Cox added, however, Oak Bay wants to co-operate "if anyone has a suggestion" acceptable to all.

Mayor R. B. Wilson told the committee that city council had gone on record as favoring a joint project if agreement could be reached with the other municipalities.

GROUP SET UP

He noted that the Chamber of Commerce had set up its own committee to investigate the possibility of a suitable project in connection with the university.

Ald. Austin Curtis reported that he had been advised local municipalities could make no official approach to the provincial government yet on the matter of centennial funds because the necessary legislation, though approved at the 1963 session, had not yet been proclaimed.

"I'm sure all the councils have an open mind on this

Ten Girls Vie For Title

Ten girls picked last night on finalists in the 1963 Miss Victoria contest are, from left: Linda Lush, 22, 1887 Oak Bay; Barbara Brown, 18, 204 Hotham; Judith Janard, 18, 265 Judith; Ann Rainford, 19, 1111 Malvern; Linda Seaton, 20, 1227 West; Pamela Crawford, 19, 1541 Barden; Carol Wachter, 18, 328 Edward; Marie White, 18, 989 Violet; Lile Freese, 19, 225 Cook; and Marjorie Brown, 19, 1537 Arm. Greater Victoria school board recently objected to students taking part in contest but some of finalists is going to school.

Water Bomber Goes To Its Alberni Base

The huge Martin Mars water bomber owned by Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd. has been moved to its summer operating base near Port Alberni and is ready for use in the 1963 forest fire fighting season.

Pilot Dan McIvor reported from the camp at Spruce Lake that the big bomber with a full load of 6,000 gallons had been put through her paces on a trial flight Monday and "crushed along beautifully at 145 to 150 knots."

CRAFT MODIFIED

The craft had undergone some modification at Fairley Aviation's plant at Sidney during the winter months. It was flown April 11 from Patricia Bay Airport to Spruce Lake.

Flight crews and other personnel have since been readying their camp and carrying out running tests in readiness for the coming season.

Four Victoria area men are stationed at the small camp some six miles from Port Alberni. They are Jack and Ray Bath of Sidney, and Tom Worley of Victoria, flight engineers; and George Stewart, radio technician.

Pilot Dan McIvor and Bill Waddington of Vancouver will be at the controls of the Mars water bomber, and Val Hemmell of Vancouver will fly a Cessna 195 "Bird Dog" ahead of the Mars to spot the target areas.

Board Rejects Plan For Saanich Sewage

By JACK FREY

The B.C. pollution control board has rejected Saanich's application for permission to discharge treated sewage effluent into Colquitz Creek.

Official notification has yet to be received from the board, but municipal engineer Neville Life told Saanich health and welfare committee last night that the board had turned thumbs down on a proposed $1,700,000 sewage scheme for the southwestern part of the municipality.

Coun. Joseph Casey, angry that health officials did not provide specifications about what degree of purity would be acceptable to the pollution control board, did not give up the fight.

"If we put pure water in there, I don't see how they can stop us," he told the committee.

Uniform Fees For Dogs Under Study

Setting up of uniform dog licence fees and regulations for Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt is under consideration by the intermunicipal committee.

It was agreed yesterday that Saanich, which employs its poundkeeper and collects its own licence fees, should not be included in the bid for uniformity.

The three other municipalities employ the SPCA for licensing and impounding of dogs, whereas Saanich only uses the society's pound facilities for dogs it has picked up.

Reeve A. C. Wurtelle said Esquimalt was most anxious to obtain uniformity.

"My council feels that it is stupid that the rate (for dog licences) should be set in each of the three municipalities, as it is at present," Reeve Wurtelle said.

"We feel that this committee is the logical place for representatives of Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to decide on a scale of fees which we would recommend to our respective councils."

The committee endorsed Mayor R. B. Wilson's suggestion that the first step would be to compile fees and regulations now in effect in the three municipalities for study and comparison.

The data will be sent to the respective municipal councils before the matter is discussed more fully at the intermunicipal level.

Coun. Allan Cox said Oak Bay had only recently discussed licence fees with the SPCA and "after much heated discussion" finally accepted the society's recommended scale.

He added that in Oak Bay SPCA representatives had also been granted permission "on a trial basis" to canvass from door-to-door in an effort to ensure all dogs were licensed.

"They will not be dunning," said Coun. Cox, adding that the same method used elsewhere had not resulted in "bad public reaction."

Vacancy For Cruise

When the clocks strike noon Monday a 73-foot yacht will slip away from the Oak Bay Boat-house.

The Blue Ford will sail up Vancouver Island's west coast, around her northern end, and back down the east coast home to Victoria.

Blue Ford was chartered by sales representative J. T. Graham, 1801 Richardson and a majority of those going will be sales agents looking for hard-to-reach markets.

She will carry 10 passengers and Mr. Graham says there is room for another two or three, not necessarily for a business trip.

There is still a cabin available — and another woman shared would be company for the one who's doing the cooking.

Anyone interested is asked to telephone Mr. Graham at 383-7722 during the day, or at 383-5941 after 6 p.m.

Apartment Block Started

Construction will begin next week on a $550,000 three-story court-type apartment block on Esquimalt Road.

The block is being built by former Vancouver contractor John Copp and will have a modern marine look to the exterior.

Building permit for the apartment was issued yesterday and bulldozers immediately moved onto the site across from Esquimalt Shopping Centre.

Actual building is expected to start next week and continue through until the end of November.

A year-round heated swimming pool will be built on the apartment site. One hundred per cent off street parking will be provided.

The building's 67 suites will be of the one and two-bedroom variety.

There will be five lobbies located in the building and an elevator service will be provided.

The building will have a special finish on the exterior which will give it a modern marine-like look, the builder told the Colonist last night.

Car 1,000,000

They Got Boat-and-Banner

The D. R. Ellis family, of Edmonton, had one thing in mind when they came rushing down the Tsawwassen causeway yesterday just before 9 a.m. — to catch the Queen of Saanich for Victoria.

The Ellis family caught the boat all right with three minutes to spare — and landed right in the midst of a celebrity bonanza.

Theirs just happened to be vehicle 1,000,000 carried on the Swartz Bay-Tsavwassen run.

They were flagged down by ferry service manager Monty Aldous and before started Mr. Ellis could figure out what was going on. His car was flagged with a 1,000,000th-vehicle sign and the family was given the red carpet treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis and their children, Beverly, 12, Bobby, 7, and Bruce, 2, were on a travelling holiday and planned to head for Port Angeles, but in view of the entertainment scheduled for yesterday, the family decided to stay on.

On the way over they were given the run of the ship. They were presented with a replica of Victoria's cluster lights and dined at the Imperial Hotel with Mayor R. B. Wilson.

In the afternoon they were scheduled to travel to Butchart Gardens and the Wax Museum. The family dined at the Empress Hotel last night as guests of the ferry service and city of Victoria.

It was a close thing for the Ellis family though. Vehicle No. 999,999 boarded at Swartz Bay.

Radar Out In Oak Bay

Oak Bay police will be able to conduct sobriety tests but will not be able to check traffic with radar, an estimates committee has decided.

The committee gave tentative approval to a police budget of $136,121 after cutting the $2,115 radar set from the estimates.

New equipment authorized for the department included a breath analyzer, the first of its kind for Greater Victoria police force, high gain antenna for police radios, a revolver and a Polaroid camera.

Two Months Early

Tourist Season Opens With Bang—in March

Vancouver Island tourist season, which normally starts in mid-May, opened with a bang early in March, commissioner William Hawkins said yesterday.

"It indicates there will be a large tourist business this year," he said.

Last year's tourist income for the island and the Gulf Island amounted to $82,000,000.

"Requests—for information from our office in March were up 140 per cent above the same period last year, cars coming here by ferries in March were up about 45 per cent from the previous year," said Mr. Hawkins.

Mr. Hawkins said that publicity bureau advertising has been keyed to extension of the annual tourist season here.

Y Boys Plan Drives

Members of the YMCA Junior Leaders' Club have set a goal of $150 in a series of bottle drives designed to add money to the coffers of the YM-TWCA building fund.

The 19 boys, aged from 12 to 15 years, will hold their first drive in the Carnarvon Park area, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

THREE-YEAR PERIOD

"The $150 figure is a big one for a group of young boys," said Lloyd Henderson, a YMCA youth director, who helped organize the drive, "

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died a few years ago and I was left with two little boys. I married a fine man and we now have a son whom we call J.R. The problem is my husband's mother.

She showers J. R. with attention and gifts and completely ignores the other children. I can understand her feelings since J. R. is her only grandchild, but she goes out of her way to remind my two other boys that he is special. They just stand around and stare when grandma helps J. R. unwrap the lovely gifts she has bought for him.

My husband refuses to talk to his mother about this. I desperately need some advice. Can you help? —HOUSTON.

Dear Houston: Children do not attach as much importance to gifts as adults think. To them it is a momentary joy and forgotten. It's how you treat children—day in and day out—that gives them a sense of security and well-being.

Of course, grandma's show of favoritism is thoughtless and mean, but it will have no lasting effect on the older boys (except that they are likely to despise her).

If it will make you feel better, have some gifts wrapped and ready in the closet. When grandma arrives with a present for J. R. hand the older boys a gift from you and dad.

Dear Ann Landers: I came here recently from Ireland and am faced with a problem. I am staying in the home of American friends and am encountering, for the first time, the American tea bag. What is a person supposed to do with the tea bag after it has been used?

It seems uncouth to place the soggy, disreputable thing on the saucer. One can't leave it in the cup as the tea becomes too brisk.

I have searched for the answer in books on American etiquette but can find nothing. Can you help? —ISLE OF ELEN.

Dear Erin: Tea bags are a great convenience, but guests should not have to figure out what to do with them.

The tea bags should be used in the kitchen and then removed. No guest should be burdened with this do-it-yourself project.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old. I don't smoke, swear, eat my hair, wear white lipstick or eyeshadow, and my teachers or stay out late. All I want is a little privacy in my own home.

The family bathroom is on the other side of my room, so everybody walks right through at all hours of the day or night. Nobody ever knocks. My brothers and my father always manage to break in when I am dressing or undressing and it is very embarrassing.

If I could have just a little room of my own, I would be grateful. My father says this is foolish. He claims I am still a baby and am making a big fuss over nothing. Mom said to write to you and get your opinion. Please say yes.

Dear Open House: As a matter of courtesy no one should open a bedroom door and walk in without first knocking.

Since your bedroom is in the direct line of family traffic you should have the little book on your door to insure privacy. A 13-year-old girl is no baby.

Confidential to Half Cuckoo: I think your arithmetic is off. She sounds like a total nut to me. Since the woman refuses to get help, change your phone number and keep it out of the book.

Confidential to Hog Tied Feet: Talk to your banker. He will explain the details. If you are on the note you are indeed responsible.

Looking at some of the models and stamps to be sold at the St. Michael's School Fun Fair are Mr. Derek Todd, convener of the fathers' stall, and Jim Dempsey and Jim McMahon, conveners of the boys' stall. The gala affair is being convened by the St. Michael's School Mothers' Auxiliary and will be held Saturday, April 27, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the school, 820 Victoria Avenue. Doll dresses, teddy bear chairs, bird houses, plants and home cooking will be for sale. Tea will be served and movies shown. There will be games and a snack bar for youngsters.

Marion Bradley Heads Women's Curling Club

Mrs. E. Eldridge was elected vice-president, with Mrs. M. Ingth and Mrs. Helen Edwards, zone representative and draw committee. Miss Mary Moran is secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. B. Willis presented trophies to the winning rinks for the past season. Club championship was won by Marge Sturrock, skip, Dorothy Feltzmann, third, Brownie Edwards, second and Emily Bushby, lead.

Flora Martin led her rink to win both the Betty Willis and Walter Knight trophies. Her rink was made up of Beth Seely, third, Ade Fuller, second, and Sadie Campbell, lead.

ST. MARK'S St. Mark's evening branch will hold a card party in the parish hall April 25 at 8 p.m. Prizes and refreshments.

Canadian Women Impress Designer

By NORA MARTIN

PARIS (TNT)—At last one expert Frenchman finds women in Canada and the United States "beautiful and charming." He is Paris fashion designer Louis Feraud, and his new styles are likely to set the new look for numerous females on the American continent.

While several French fashion experts, and even American designers, have been quoted as saying "American women are in a fashion rut, lack individualism and are either over or under-dressed," Louis Feraud thinks that American girls and women are wonderful. He's recently come back from a trip overseas and he is enchanted.

Since Feraud's Paris creations will be sold in a chain of stores in the United States and in Canada, I had a close look at his new collection and found the clothes most wearable, French-looking and charming.

CASUAL TYPE Feraud's Paris fashion house is just across from the Elysée Palace and from his salons one can almost see into the soup-plate of President de Gaulle. Feraud himself is a rather casual, sporty type who prefers to wear a turtle-necked sweater and a blazer to a business suit and likes skiing and swimming.

Feraud doesn't pretend to make fashion revolutions. He just designs young and pretty looking clothes which have a definite Paris touch such as the seaming details on milk-shantung or linen suits or a feather fringe around the neckline of a pink silk jersey party dress.

Concerning the American newspapers are buzzing about their romance.

"We are good friends," Feraud told me, "and we were both born on Feb. 13."

Blonde Miss Novak is also Feraud's favorite customer right now and he has fitted some 20 outfits on her shapely $7.23-37 figure.

I asked Feraud for his secret of success. Despite that his Paris fashion house is a small one, he's managed to get more of a hold on the international fashion market than some of the big and better known Haute Couture houses in Paris.

"My secret for success," Feraud said, "is 10 hours daily work six days a week, plus a high coefficient of good luck."

THIS GOOD LIFE

This good life may be identified by a camping trip, a new hit play, or a quiet evening at home. But here in Canada it is really much more than these or other material things.

More than anything else, the good life is brought about by the freedom to choose your own way. This freedom, which is yours for every decision from a brand of fishing tackle to your choice of a career, makes life rich and exciting.

And what provides the information for your choices in material things? Probably advertising. It tells you what is available... makes even the everyday choices interesting and fun.

Advertising is information. So long as our mental appetites are stimulated by the freedom of choice offered through advertising, we will continue to be an alert, progressive nation.

London Agog Over 'Alex and Angus' Bagpipes Decorate The Wedding Cake

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—A sense of excitement rippled through London on the eve of popular Princess Alexandra's marriage to Scotsman Angus Ogilvy.

Everywhere in shops and offices the talk Tuesday was of "Alex and Angus" and people remarked that there was even more of a festive air than in 1960 for the wedding of Princess Margaret.

The Queen set the celebrations going Monday night with a glittering "ball of the century" at Windsor Castle in honor of the bridal pair.

In the cool depths of Westminster Abbey, whose ancient stone has been cleaned to a pearly finish, workmen hammired at stands and draperies. A full-dress rehearsal with "stand-ins" was held Tuesday to perfect the Abbey arrangements. Alexandra and her fiance had their own rehearsal Monday, when the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, took them through the marriage service.

Alexandra drives to the abbey this morning from Kensington Palace in the Queen's clear plastic-topped Rolls-Royce. With her will be her brother, the Duke of Kent, who is giving away the bride.

A detachment from the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, of which the 24-year-old Princess is colonel-in-chief, will line the approach to the Abbey together with troops from one

New Zealand and two British regiments.

The ceremony is scheduled to start at noon and last for nearly an hour. It is being fully televised on both British channels and there is a closed-circuit system in the Abbey so guests can follow every detail of the service on 36 monitor screens.

There are four bridesmaids, headed by Princess Anne, and two pages from the groom's family.

Other foreign royalty among the 2,000 abbey guests include the Scandinavian monarchs, the Count of Paris, pretender to the French throne, and a cluster of ex-kings and archdukes whose realms disappeared before the Second World War.

George Drew, Canada's high commissioner in London, will be in the Abbey, but Mrs. Drew is in hospital recovering from a minor operation. The Drews are personal friends of Alexandra, who has been a guest at their London home several times.

The Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, Maj.-Gen. George Perkins and Mrs. Perkins, also friends of the bride, are among other Canadian guests.

Hon. Frank Mackenzie Ross, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, and Mrs. Ross, who were in residence at Government House when Princess Alexandra visited here in 1960, have also gone to London to attend the wedding today.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wade of Victoria flew to London last week and they will be in Westminster Abbey among the 2,000 guests.

After the ceremony, the bridal pair leave by a glass coach drawn by four grey horses for the reception at St. James's Palace. Later they will fly from London airport to Aberdeen, Scotland.

They will motor the last 40 miles to Birkhall on the Balmoral estate where they will spend the first part of their honeymoon.

Birkhall is usually occupied by the Queen Mother who is lending it for the occasion. The Duke and Duchess of Kent spent the first part of their honeymoon at Birkhall.

At the request of Princess Alexandra of Kent, five sets of bagpipes, constructed in Ireland and decorated with the family tartan of her husband, Hon. Angus Ogilvy, were added to their wedding cake.

The princess paid a last-minute call to the bakery department of J. Lyons & Co. at Cadby Hall, Hammersmith, W., where the cake was being prepared for the wedding today.

The cake, standing five feet high and weighing 120 pounds, has three 16-sided tiers decorated with sugar lace and lattice work in white and silver. It took five weeks to make and Lyons used six pounds of butter and sugar, 70 eggs, 15½ pounds of currants, 15 pounds of raisins, 18 pounds of mixed peel, one pound of ground almonds, seven pounds of flour, rum, brandy and spices.

The cake is decorated with 40 pounds of marzipan and 15 pounds of royal icing and pastillage.

Queen Elizabeth's cousin, Princess Alexandra of Kent, and the Hon. Angus Ogilvy, son of the Earl of Airlie, will be married today in a ceremony at noon in Westminster Abbey in London.

PERSONAL MENTION

The Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment Pipe and Drum Band will lead the grand march at the Victoria Firemen's Mutual Benefit Association annual ball to be held Friday evening in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel. Fire Chief and Mrs. J. Abbott and Deputy Chief and Mrs. J. Robertson will be in the receiving line.

Guest of Honor

Miss Terry MacNeil who is to be married shortly, was guest of honor at a shower in the home of her sister, Mrs. Rand Wells. Gifts were concealed in a decorated Easter basket. Guests were Mrs. M. Mather, Mrs. R. K. Corbett, Mrs. L. Harlow, Mrs. I. Ridley, Mrs. F. Woodruff, Mrs. L. Corbett, Mrs. E. Welsh, Mrs. H. Smart and the Misses Jackie Russell, Marie Ridley, Debora Gouge, Rene Mather and Donna MacNeil.

For Darlene Hendry

A blue and white theme was carried out at a shower given in honor of Miss Darlene Hendry, May bride-elect. The shower was held at the home of hostesses, Mrs. James Herby and her daughter, Mrs. Daniel Maloney. The guests of honor, Miss Hendry, Mrs. R. Hendry and Mrs. H. Southwell, received roses and carnations on corsage. Guests were Mrs. J. Gordon, Mrs. J. Maloney, Mrs. P. Zonula, Mrs. J. Pickford, Mrs. N. Gosslett, Mrs. K. Neislinger, and the Misses Mary Lilley, Joan Pindney and Anne Macdonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Gorsline Wed in St. Andrew's Chapel

Following a honeymoon on the island and in the United States, LS and Mrs. Rodney A. Gorsline will make their home at 140 Joseph Street, Victoria.

The bride is the former Barbara Anne Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson, Vancouver, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gorsline, Vegreville, Alta.

The marriage took place recently in St. Andrew's Chapel, Naden, with Rev. A. Mowat officiating. Pink tulips and carnations decorated the church and pink candelabra flanked the altar.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white silk organza over taffeta, with bouffant skirt, posed over a hoop. The scoop neckline featured appliques which extended over the bodice. A large bow accented the back of the dropped waistline above a cathedral train.

For Bride

In honor of May bride-elect Miss Lynne Comb, a miscellaneous shower was held recently at the Howe Street home of Miss Sandra Colmer and her mother, Mrs. Isabel Colmer. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor, her mother, Mrs. J. Comb and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. B. Wormald. Guests were Mrs. Pearl Colmer, Mrs. O. Kowalyk, Mrs. T. Lechuk, Mrs. D. Forbes, Mrs. L. Reid and Mrs. Anne Cheko of Vancouver and the Misses Shelly Comb, Kathy Wormald, Sandra Begg, Jane Knudsen, Frances Ivinga, Linda Green, Judy Howard, Karen Bigrigg and Sharon Allen.

Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naras Plan.

Follow this easy way ordered by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blood disappears—how much better you feel. JAVEX-clean diapers are safer

JAVEX purifies and softens diapers to guard against painful diaper rash

Washing and rinsing baby's diapers is not always enough. They may still contain harmful germs, the fabric may be too harsh for baby's tender skin. "Javex" will lift and dissolve non-hygienic residue to give an extra margin of protection and whiteness. Use "Javex" for diapers a mother can trust.

The fibers of this diaper are soft looking, still and irritating to baby's tender skin. Cause is residue containing harmful bacteria the eye alone can't detect.

"Javex" has made the fibers of this diaper hygienically clean. Rough residue has been dissolved from the fabric, diaper now safer and more gentle for your baby. Notice how white the fabric is thanks to "Javex".

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN AND RICHARD L. FREY

When there are two or three possibilities and entries are limited, it may be puzzling to decide which finesse to take. This was the problem which South had to face on the sixteenth deal of the Intercollegiate Tournament.

Some players believe that to make a forcing jump response in a new suit it is necessary to have some fit in the opener's suit. It is true that the jump can be made more freely when a fit is present, but with a strong hand and a strong suit, a jump is in order in spite of no fit. If South responds one diamond on this deal, later he may find it difficult to convince his partner that his hand is so strong.

North's two later bids in spades show that he is not averse to a slam and that he has long control of the spades. This is sufficient to encourage South to look for six diamonds, which scores five par points for North-South. Whatever the actual bidding, South is required to play in six diamonds, against the directed opening lead of the club king.

Declarer would like to finesse twice in both red suits, but this would require four entries to dummy, and he has only three. For a variety of reasons, it is best to take one diamond finesse and two heart finesses. But two diamond finesses may still leave East with a diamond guard—ask, indeed, they do. Also, there is a fair chance that one diamond finesse will collect the king, which East may hold.

There is a psychological point also. If the diamond finesse wins the first time, there is no guarantee that it will succeed again. It would be a good play for West to delay taking the king. But West could not refuse to win a heart because he would have no assurance that he would have another chance.

For making the contract by taking two heart finesses, South scores five points for his side. (A Bid-Michie syndicate position.)

BIG GEORGE! By Virgil Partech

"Now, Mr. Ajax, I want you to say anything that pops into your head."

Youngsters Display Swimming Prowess

About 1,200 parents here watched a number of young swimmers under 12 demonstrate how their YM-YWCA coaches had "drown-proofed" them.

The youngsters were performing at the second annual "Y" aquascope held at the Crystal Garden.

Staying afloat without using swimming strokes which sap energy was demonstrated for about 10 minutes by the young swimmers.

Members of the "Y" Leaders' Corps demonstrated life-saving techniques in and out of the pool.

The 16 and 17-year-olds demonstrated the Holger-Nelson method of artificial respiration. They will be counsellors during the summer months at Camp Thunderbird.

A big hit in the show was the diving staged by the Vancouver Amateur Swim Club, coached by Canada's Olympic British Empire Games and Pan-American Games star Irene MacDonald.

Miss MacDonald performed a series of dives from a three-metre board.

Dick Ellis, Charlie Constable, Bill Hook and Don Burgess, a team of aqua-nuts, provided comedy with hilarious antics on and off the diving board.

Also in attendance were seven swinging swimmers from the RCN trapeze team and the Mount View High School Band, conducted by Howard Denike.

Income Alone 'Misleading'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Using income alone in assessing consumer buying habits may be misleading, says John S. Towgood.

In a report entitled "An Investigation of Buying Habits and Social Stratification in the City of Vancouver," Mr. Towgood says that while the bulk of the population today falls into the middle income category, buying behavior, tastes, spending and saving aspirations in this group "can be poles apart."

For this reason, he says, it's necessary to take into consideration other factors such as occupation, education, age and family commitments.

The paper, prepared as a graduating essay for the University of British Columbia's faculty of commerce and business administration, is a 123-page analysis based on answers to a three-page questionnaire.

The questionnaire was filled out by 711 families chosen to reflect the attitudes of the 85,000 families in the Greater Vancouver area.

Mr. Towgood found a definite relationship between economic status and the stores at which the family buys.

DIFFERENT HABITS
For example, if a woman's husband is under 40 years of age and there are no children, she is more likely to purchase her new dress at a specialty store. Her neighbor, whose husband is over 40 and has children under 19, probably buys her dress at a department store.

But if the head of the house earns $7,000 a year or more, the odds are the family will purchase furniture at a department store while someone earning less than $3,000 a year may buy his furniture at a specialty store.

Marathon

ATHENS (Reuters) — The Plains of Marathon, where a decisive battle was fought between the mighty Greek and Persian armies 2,500 years ago, will be invaded again in July.

Some 14,000 Boy Scouts from 70 nations, including Canada, will camp on the Beach of Schinias, 28 miles northeast of Athens, during the 11th world jamboree scheduled July 29 to Aug. 11.

The aim of the jamboree is to "unite the youth of the world, strengthen ties of friendship, promote understanding and forge world peace."

King Paul of Greece will be patron of the jamboree, and Crown Prince Constantine, 23, as chief of the Boy Scout movement in Greece, is expected to preside over most of the meetings.

It is estimated the jamboree will cost some $2,800,000 and half of this sum is being contributed by the Greek government.

The camp fee has been fixed at $47 for each Scout. That will include food for the duration of the jamboree, transportation from Athens to the camp, medical attention, a jamboree badge and camp equipment.

The jamboree camp, to be set up around a bay in the Marathon Plains, will be divided into 11 sub-camps of approximately 1,300 campers each. The sub-camps will be named after the tribes which fought by the side of the Athenians against the Persians in the Battle of Marathon 2,500 years ago.

To ensure that Scouts of the various nationalities mix as much as possible, the organizing committee has ruled that in each sub-camp Greek Scout troops will play host to their foreign contingents.

Particular attention is being paid to health. All Scouts must have a thorough medical examination just before they leave their respective countries.

The Greek armed forces will set up a 100-bed hospital and there will be first aid posts staffed by qualified doctors and nurses. In addition, arrangements are being made with civilian hospitals in Athens to take care of any emergency.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITY
Jamboree chaplains and priests will co-ordinate all religious activities within the camp and be available for consultation at any time.

The Greek foreign ministry has instructed all Greek consular authorities that Scouts coming to the jamboree will be exempt from the payment of visa fees for entry into Greece.

The government also is making a substantial reduction in fares by land and sea on passenger craft of Greek ownership.

During their stay in the camp, the Scouts will have the opportunity to attend events which include games of skill, demonstrations of Scoutcraft, athletics, field games, swimming and visits to archeological sites.

HALIFAX (CP) — A chief petty officer who transferred from the Royal Navy to its Canadian counterpart nearly 12 years ago continues to do notable work for his old service.

CPO Gordon J. Clare, 44, this year was awarded £25 ($25) by the British Admiralty for a rack he suggested for torpedo warheads. The racks now are used in RN submarines.

He was given a further £22 ($22) from the Herbert Lott Naval Trust Fund for his efforts to improve fighting equipment. In 1962 he was awarded £5 from the same fund.

CPO Clare transferred to the RCN in 1951 after 12 years in the RN where he became a chief ordnance artificer. His reason for the move: He felt like a change.

During the Second World War he served in all theatres including the Burma campaign in Russia, mostly on cruisers and destroyers.

In the Royal Canadian Navy he served initially in the training cruiser Quebec and later was on the strength of the frigate Prestonian and the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

NAVY SUPPORTER

The naval trust fund was set up by Herbert Lott, a member of the London Stock Exchange. In 1929 he donated £22,000 ($22,000) to establish the fund and later added another £5,000 ($15,000). At his death in 1948 the residue of his more than £100,000 ($300,000) estate was added.

Mr. Lott established the prize fund because he was interested in the Royal Navy and its role in Commonwealth defence. He believed the RN's weapons were of great importance in maintaining world peace.

SEVERAL NAVIES

The fund now is used to make awards to the Royal Navy, the Royal Marines and the Indian and Canadian navies.

The RCN has had its share of awards. Last year the frigate HMCS Stettler got recognition from the fund for gunnery and sonar proficiency.

Since September, 1962, CPO Clare has been squadron weapons chief aboard the frigate Cap de la Madeleine, senior ship of the 9th Canadian Escort Squadron.

Most of the world lives in darkness

Hard to believe, but true. Yet more than 70% of the countries of the world impose complete or partial censorship on their newspapers.

In these countries, Freedom of the Press is lost—and with it, people have lost their voice in government. Protest against such curbs is quickly muzzled. Fortunately, in Canada, Freedom of the Press is unchallenged. It is a Canadian birthright that must be guarded.

Few Canadians realize that our press has no special privileges. The rights of the press are the same as each person's rights. The individual and the press possess identical freedoms and identical responsibilities under law.

Our newspapers require no permission to operate. They have no obligation to any governmental body. They have free access to all the news. They are responsible only to you, their readers.

History records that when free people are deprived of their easy access to news they lose their say in government. Consider this the next time you pick up your daily newspaper. Truth and freedom are necessities you can't afford to lose. Guard them!

Garden Notes

Bigger the Fewer

By M. V. CHENUT, FRHS

I was standing in front of a florist shop the other day admiring some enormous spikes of greenhouse-grown anemones in the window when a friend came up and tapped me on the shoulder.

"How in heaven's name do they ever grow them that big?" he asked. "I grow anemones in my garden every year, but they never get to be more than two feet tall."

It is quite possible and not too difficult to grow giant anemones in the garden with spikes up to five feet tall, but it is necessary to have an entirely different approach to their culture—a different mental take-off, so to speak.

In the ordinary course of events, anemones are not grown for their individual blooms but for their overall massed effect. Our aim is lots and lots of small spikes on every plant and a continuous succession of bloom over the whole season.

To accomplish this, the tips are snipped off the plants when they are set out in their beds in the spring, whereupon they sprout side shoots from every leaf joint, each one of which produces a short-stemmed spike of bloom. We deliberately hold down the height of the plant to secure a forest of bloom.

To grow giant spikes, the whole process is reversed. It must be clearly understood that such cultivation means "a short life and a merry one" for the plants. You get just one spike of bloom per plant, and when that spike is finished—Boom! No more anemones.

To get one immense spike means that only one stem is allowed to grow—the same idea as cordons sweet peas or stalked tomatoes. Branches are ruthlessly suppressed. The top isn't pinched out but is encouraged to grow on and up, but every side shoot appearing in the leaf axils is nipped off as it forms.

If you are buying plants to set out and grow in this fashion, make sure you get a naturally tall-growing variety such as Maximum or Sky-scraper, as most of the anemones sold for bedding out are semi-tall or dwarf. If side shoots have already formed, don't take them all off at once but remove a few every day so as to cause less shock to the plants.

Don't forget that these single-stemmed plants have to be staked and tied carefully or the wind will break them. Spacing should be about 14 inches apart, with a slim five-foot stake set in place before the plant tip has reached the two-foot mark.

To obtain tall, prize-winning spikes and big, well-formed florets, plant on manured ground and feed heavily with a soluble highest fertilizer in water. Once every third week give each plant three pints of lime water, made by "creaming" three heaping tablespoons of hydrated lime in a bowl with a little hot water and working it with the back of a spoon, then stirring this into a six-quart watering can of water.

Some of the best very tall varieties for this type of culture are Apple Blossom, pink and white; Canary, yellow; Fireflame, golden orange; Ruby, deep red; Snowflake, soft creamy white, and Wallflower, coppery crimson.

At the other end of the scale are the Hybrid Sprites, new this year. These tiny anemones start blooming when only eight inches tall, then branch out to make a plant never more than 15 inches high and so uniform in height they look as if they had been sheared like a hedge.

ART BUCHWALD Sees Other Uses for 'Hot Line'

They Need Each Other

WASHINGTON — Every time things get quiet, or comparatively quiet, between East and West, the rumors start flying that Khrushchev is on his way out and that there is a new struggle in the Kremlin for power.

In the United States when things quiet down, the rumors have it that President Kennedy will have no chance of getting through his program, and he is certain of being out down on all his requests.

The sad fact, whether they like it or not, is that Khrushchev needs Kennedy and Kennedy needs Khrushchev and we wouldn't be surprised if the "hot line" between Moscow and Washington serves a purpose other than to prevent accidental war.

We can see, in the not-so-distant future, this conversation taking place between the two heads of state.

"Mr. Khrushchev, I'm sorry to bother you, but I was wondering when you were planning to send another man in orbit. I'm having a helluva time getting space funds. Is there any chance of getting a

Kennedy, Khrushchev Have Common Problems

Russian up in space in the next two months?"

"We've been trying, but we've had some setbacks. You haven't been helping me much, you know, by postponing Cooper's flight. I'm having difficulty on funds also."

"I'm sorry about Cooper, Mr. Khrushchev, but we've had trouble with our booster. If you could send two or three men up right now, I'd do something spectacular for you when your next budget comes up."

"I'll see what I can do, Mr. Kennedy. By the way, you would be helping me quite a bit if you announced you were going to ring the Soviet Union with Polaris submarines."

"The Soviet Navy is having a fight for appropriations with the Soviet Army and Air Force, and a threat from you might help Soviet naval morale quite a bit."

"But Mr. Khrushchev, I just announced we were giving Polaris missiles to our NATO forces. Isn't that enough?"

"Make it a little stronger."

"I don't want to go overboard."

"May I remind you, Mr. Kennedy, that if it weren't for Soviet troops in Cuba you would be having a great deal of trouble with your military appropriations. If you're not willing to help me on the submarines, I might be forced to withdraw all my troops from Cuba."

"No, don't do that, Mr. Khrushchev. But as long as we're asking favors I'd like to point out to you that because of the Communist failure to submit many neutral countries I doubt if I'll get my foreign aid bill through this year."

"We're doing the best we can for you in Viet Nam, Mr. Kennedy."

"That's military. What happened to you in Italy and France and the Congo?"

"I'll admit we haven't been doing so well there, but you haven't helped me much by continuing the disarmament talks. They cut my atomic energy program by 10 million rubles because of your compromise on on-site inspections."

"I'm sorry about that, Mr. Khrushchev. But I was sure you wouldn't agree to them, anyway, so I went ahead with the proposal."

"Well, I wish you'd check with me first, Mr. Kennedy. Oh, by the way, we're announcing a new anti-missile missile which will go into production in the fall."

"I'm happy to hear it. Our anti-missile missile program has been lagging and this will certainly give it a good jolt in the arm. Thanks a lot."

"Don't mention it. I'm having trouble though getting authorization for some more ground divisions. Could you possibly have your Gen. Taylor make a speech about brigade wars again?"

"Will do, it's been nice talking to you."

"Same here. My best to Mrs. Kennedy. And Mrs. Khrushchev says to tell her not to exert herself, and to get plenty of rest."

Poor Little Glamour Girl

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Kim Novak insisted on designing her own clothes for Of Human Bondage. She is supposed to be a poor little cockney girl but you'd never know it from what she is wearing. Even her waitress uniform is bulging with glamour. Perhaps Kim should have Otto Preminger as a director. Remember when he was going to make a picture with Lana Turner and she insisted on glamorous clothes which were wrong for the role? He dropped her from the movie.

When Frank Sinatra let out his long time manager Hank Kunkin, he gave him, as his share of their business, the many publishing enterprises controlled by Sinatra. Now Hank is making almost as much as Frank—the catalogue add up to more than $1,000,000.

Ava Gardner was telling chums that she has just signed a two-picture deal with Terence Stamp. She liked his Dr. No picture. They have been planning for years to work together.

Cesar Danova plays Apollodorus in Cleopatra. He was and is, Cleo's first love. And unlike Richard Burton as Anthony and Rex Harrison as Caesar, Cesar goes all the way through the picture with Elizabeth Taylor.

Forrest Tucker wrote a western movie script 12 years ago, to star himself with Tony Perkins. Then Tony did Friendly Persuasion, became a star overnight and wasn't too keen on appearing in a western. He has just re-read the story, Saddle Soldiers, and wants to do it with Forrest, chiefly because "only two Indians get killed."

It seems that the lady agent of George Maharis, a good agent and a good looker, will be getting all of George when she marries him, instead of her current 10 per cent.

Just as soon as Vic Damone sings his last note at Basin Street in New York, end of this month, he will fly to see his son eight-year-old Perry, in Italy. The boy, named for Perry Como, lives with mother Pier Agnelli in Rome.

Rex Harrison has been meeting with the 20th-Century-Fox toppers about the publicity campaign for Cleopatra. This is how the billing will read on the screen credits—

Being President Has Compensations, says CHARLES McDOWELL

Cat, Kids, Car, Milk Not His Worry

A lady of our acquaintance feels sorry for the Kennedys because the president's departure is so often delayed when he is going off on a weekend trip, or longer vacation, with his wife and children. They leave ahead of the president and he follows in another plane after cleaning up his work at the office.

When this happens, the whole family misses the fun of travelling together. The lady says, and this is no small penalty to pay for living in the White House.

No doubt the lady has a point, but somehow we don't feel as deeply about it as she does. Where family travel is concerned, we can think of several compensating advantages to living in the White House.

The Kennedys, when they are taking the children to visit their grandparents or on an outing to the mountains or the beach, don't have to worry about finding someone to come in and feed the cat and check on the new kittens.

Mr. Kennedy is spared the severe duty of loading the car, and doing it in such a way that each child has a place to lie down and there is at least one place where a child can be isolated from any other child. He is likewise spared the discovery that he hasn't left a space for the diaper pail, and has the whole puzzle to take apart and put back together again.

Car-top carriers are not a part of Mr. Kennedy's life. This is a good thing because anyone who has to deal with car-top carriers is not a good emotional risk for running a country.

Our guess would be that Mrs. Kennedy is spared having to remember to take along a damp washcloth, for wiping peanut butter and jelly off the upholstery.

As they leave the White House, the Kennedys do not, we trust, have to make an inspection tour to verify that the windows are closed, the furnace and water heater cut back, and that no cigarettes are smoldering in ashtrays.

We like to think also that they do not have to go through the hackneyed business of looking at each other and realizing that nobody remembered to cancel the milk.

Since they and the children don't wedge themselves into the family car in the first place, neither parent has to arbitrate the question of who sits where, and neither parent has to get out of the car a second time to leave the key in the mailbox for the neighbor's daughter who has agreed to feed the cat and check on the kittens.

Mr. Kennedy is spared the embarrassment of not having had the car serviced the night before, and, at the neighborhood service station, the humiliation in front of his family of not remembering how much pressure he carries in his tires.

Budget Balance Grit Goal

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Liberal government will work to reach "in one year or two years," said the new Finance Minister Walter Gordon said Tuesday night.

He added that this does not mean the objective will be reached.

Mr. Gordon, questioned on the CBC television program inquiry, also said that overcoming the unemployment problem is "the first objective of the new government in the domestic field."

The first step would be creation of a municipal development fund early in the new Parliament to provide investment capital for municipal projects.

A long-term measure would be the establishment of a national development fund to provide investment capital, primarily in private industry.

In the next 60 days, the first steps would be taken for a portable contributory retirement pension plan.

1. Some degree of integration or unification in the armed forces is essential.

2. The defence budget now is about the right size but Canadians should get better value for the money spent on defence.

—about $1,000,000,000 annually.

3. A Commons defence committee will be established "without delay" and be given more information than any previous parliamentary committee.

Guns Halt Convict As Court Terrified

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A convicted holdup man held a razor blade to the throat of a woman court reporter Tuesday in a bold bid for freedom but lost his nerve in the face of four police pistols.

Fred Parshay, 28, a prisoner from Southern Michigan prison brought here to testify against a man being tried as an armed holdup charge, terrified the court and cut reporter Constance Coffey, 46, on the arm.

The officers stripped Parshay to make sure he had no other weapons and led him out handcuffed.

Parshay was to testify for the prosecution against Carmo Crump, 31, accused of driving Parshay's getaway car in a holdup last February.

Lively Session Ends In Little Province

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Prince Edward Island legislature prorogued Tuesday after a light spring session that sparked lively debate.

Lieutenant-Governor Hyndman gave royal assent to 30 bills that included a new Election Act and one to raise gasoline and sales taxes.

A section in the Election Act to increase the urban representation in the 35-seat House aroused strong Liberal protests.

General Strike

Guiana Hit By Chaos Over Bill

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (UPI) — Premier Cheddi Jagan resumed his controversial labor reform bill through the legislature Tuesday but a general strike against enactment of the measure threw the session into chaos.

The bill would allow Jagan's labor minister to name collective bargaining agents in all industries. Its opposition is led by anti-Communist free trade unions.

The labor leaders met to plan further steps against the move by Jagan, who is a self-avowed admirer of Cuban Communist Premier Fidel Castro.

Overseas and domestic telecommunications were disrupted by the strike.

Arabs Plan Satellite

CAIRO (UPI) — The United Arab Republic plans to orbit a weather satellite this year, informed sources said Tuesday.

They said the satellite will be sent up with a two-stage rocket developed here with the help of German scientists and will burn "a new liquid fuel developed in Cairo."

The two-stage rocket has been test-fired several times, the sources said.

The Bay can offer you this wonderful saving because...

- Every so often in a fine furniture manufacturer's showrooms there is an accumulation of ends of bolts of materials. There is only enough in these ends to cover one or two sofas at the most, sometimes only enough for a chair. So the manufacturer, in this case, Braemore, clears the entire lot at a fraction of his cost in order to clear his inventory.
- You can use the actual swatches, many of them are in four-yard sample strips, to test their effect on the sofa or chair of your choice... you'll be sure and therefore satisfied with your selection.
- Scan the models here... French Provincial, Transitional, or Italian Provincial... then come in and browse around the floor... see them all!
- You'll find the finest Braemore craftsmanship in every piece, with hardwood frames dowelled, glued and mortised. Some with flat valances, some with show-wood, some to-the-floor skirts, some off-the-floor styles; most sofas and some chairs have foam rubber seat cushions.

Truce Team Going To Plain

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The International Control Commission, barred from operating within lines of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, plans to send a truce team today or Thursday to the neutralist side in the troubled Plain des Jarres.

Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma announced Tuesday this one-sided effort for peace. The neutralist leader said the commission's observers—representing Canada, India and Poland—can at least see "who is firing the rifle shots."

LULL IN SHOOTING

There has been a 48-hour lull in the shooting, but heavier fighting threatened. Rightist Gen. Phoumi Nosavan said he would send his regulars into action as allies of the outnumbered neutralists if the Pathet Lao completed its conquest of the plain, a strategic plateau 110 miles north of Vientiane, the Laos capital.

BATTALIONS DROPPED

The Pathet Lao broadcast from the interior asserted that two of Phoumi's crack paratroop battalions had been dropped in the Plain des Jarres area Monday and Tuesday.

Other developments Tuesday:

● Units of the mighty U.S. 7th Fleet were reported moving to the South China Sea area off the Gulf of Siam as a precaution against a Communist takeover of the tiny jungle kingdom.

● U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, from urgent consultations with French authorities about the Laotian situation, sped to London for similar talks with the British.

● The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said the British have rejected a Russian proposal that Britain join the Soviet Union in charging the U.S. with fanning tensions in Laos.

● Military consultations were pursued at headquarters of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Bangkok, Thailand.

● The U.S. attack carrier Ticonderoga and the guided-missile destroyer Robinson were two days out of Manila Bay on an unannounced mission.

Women Dismayed At A-Plans

MONTREAL (CP)—The Voice of Women says it notes "with deep dismay" that the Canadian government is preparing the people for immediate acceptance of nuclear weapons.

The group said in a statement Tuesday night that acceptance of nuclear arms would limit Canada's foreign policy and lose the confidence of neutral and uncommitted nations.

There have been demonstrations outside Canadian embassies "in many of the world's capitals" urging Canada to refuse nuclear weapons, the statement said.

Biculturalism Top Issue

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. A. W. Trueman, director of the Canada Council, said Tuesday night that "the overhauling of the constitution" to reconcile the English and French elements is the top issue facing Canada.

"It is my considered opinion that we cannot go on any longer as we are," he told the University Women's Club of Toronto. "I believe that the major issue that confronts Canada today is . . . the reconciling of the French and English elements in our population and the overhauling of the constitution in relation to that problem."

Dr. Trueman said constitutional reform is more important than nuclear armament, unemployment or the general position of the economy—important though these issues are.

The unsatisfactory relations between the two language groups resulted from faults on both sides, but today it was the responsibility of the English to make the next move.

"We deceive ourselves if we think we can shrug it off as I am inclined to think we have shrugged it off for nearly 200 years."

Troops Wound Students

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Heavily-armed Bedouin troops Tuesday fired on students demonstrating against King Hussein in the heart of Amman.

European witnesses said at least two youths were wounded in the encounters, which apparently erupted when the students stoned the troops.

The firing came as the desert-toughened units chased hundreds of screaming students who were trying to organize riots in favor of United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Reports of sporadic firing on Amman outskirts were reported Tuesday night.

The cable from United Press International correspondent Ray Moloney was censored at this point, the only remaining words being "Diplomatic sources say about 12 killed."

Earlier King Hussein rejected all efforts to remove him from power.

Dr. Trueman said the constitution should apply in practice the concept of Canadian society as a "mosaic"—each major ethnic and religious group retaining its identity. The American "melting pot" concept would not work in Canada.

He said he has become keenly aware of bicultural stresses in his last 10 years in Ottawa, first as chairman of the National Film Board and as Canada Council director for the last six years.

Jimmy Crow Visits the Taylors

Pet Crow Better Not

By JACK FRY

Search police will have to get up early in the morning if they want to shoot a crow which allegedly has been bothering neighborhood children on Homer Road.

One-year-old Jim Crow, who sleeps in the basement at 230 Homer, is a mighty suspicious little character at the best of times.

It took a Colonist photographer 20 minutes yesterday to get the crow into a picture, and Jim Crow might fly a lot faster if he sees a pistol-packing policeman.

Mrs. John Taylor, at whose home the crafty black bird lives, said yesterday that the police came knocking at their door because neighbors complained the bird was a nuisance.

"The police said if they had any more complaints they would come and shoot him. I feel very annoyed about it," she said.

"I don't mind other people having pets, why should they care about him? I don't want him to hurt anyone but I know he won't go to strangers, and I believe in 'live and let live,'" Mrs. Taylor said. Jim Crow has been a pet of the Taylors since he was a chick.

Leader 66

Mike's Birthday: Two Cakes, Toil

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson celebrated his 66th birthday Tuesday with a full day's work and two birthday cakes in his new office.

The Liberal leader presided at a two-hour morning cabinet meeting and emerged to announce formation of a special cabinet committee to tackle trade, economics and employment questions. He will be its chairman.

SECOND DAY

In the second day of his promised "30 days of decision" for the new Liberal government, Mr. Pearson also announced:

1. A royal commission on biculturalism will be set up "with the least possible delay."

2. His plans to confer with Prime Minister Macmillan in London next week, and a week after his return he hopes to meet President Kennedy. While overseas, he hopes to spend at least one night with Canadian forces in Europe.

STARTS EARLY

It was up and to work early for Mr. Pearson on his first full day as prime minister. He was at the East Block and behind the desk vacated Monday by Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker before most of the prime minister's office staff arrived.

His first telephone call was to government house, to convey birthday greetings to Governor General Vanier through the Governor-General's secretary, Esmond Butler. Both Gen. Vanier, 75, and Mr. Pearson were born on St. George's Day.

Pearson Challenges Future

LIBERAL HAILS EXCITING DAYS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday night he welcomes the challenges that lie ahead of him and his new Liberal government.

"It will not be an easy time but it will, I pledge you, be a time to excite the daring, to test the strong and to give new promise to the timid," he said in an address broadcast the day after assuming office.

Mr. Pearson, noting that his government lacks a majority of Commons seats, said he is resolved not to allow this "to influence the government in any way that will weaken its action for you."

NOT AVOID ISSUES

"We will not be seeking to evade any issues, to avoid any votes in Parliament. We will not be seeking any special deals. We will breach no trust, barter no principles."

Reviewing the period ahead for Parliament, which meets May 15, Mr. Pearson promised to have legislation ready to provide a framework within which Canadians can work to improve prosperity, increase employment and production and create better opportunities and greater security.

TAKING ACTION

"Above all, we will be taking action to heal the strains and tensions within our country," he said.

"The axis of our nation is the partnership of English and French-Canadians on which our federal system was founded."

He paid a special tribute to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, saying "Mr. Diefenbaker has served Canada for many years with patriotic devotion." He wished him well in his new role as opposition leader.

The new government, he said, asks the understanding, co-operation and prayers of Canadians, pledging "to do everything we can, in every way we can, to protect and promote your true interests."

DO WHAT IS BEST

He added:

"A government cannot achieve that purpose merely by doing what will produce the most obvious results today. . . .

"We have to do what is best for today but also what will contribute most to the long-term well-being and progress of our country—dealing with problems before they become crises; seizing opportunities before they disappear."

WORK TOGETHER

Noting that he will be flying to London in a few days to meet Prime Minister Macmillan, Mr. Pearson said he wants to discuss ways in which Canada and Britain "can work together to improve the trading relations and the political relations of the two countries of the world."

Of his subsequent visit to Canada and the United States, he said he wants to discuss ways in which Canada and the United States can do much together for mutual benefit and for the benefit of the world.

"I want to make sure that the two governments understand each other."

Taschereau Appointed Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP)—Robert Taschereau, 68, judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, was appointed Tuesday as chief justice of Canada.

Also on Tuesday, Prime Minister Pearson nominated Alan Macnaughton, 58, Liberal MP for Montreal Mount Royal, as Commons Speaker for the 28th Parliament.

Chief Justice Taschereau succeeds Chief Justice Poirie Kerwin who died Feb. 2 after heading the court since July 1, 1954.

The new chief justice had been next in seniority, appointed to the Supreme Court Feb. 8, 1961. He is a native of Quebec City, educated at Quebec Seminary and Laval University, and admitted to the bar July 8, 1920.

He practiced law in Quebec until his Ottawa appointment. Honorary secretary of the Canadian Bar Association from 1934 to 1941, Chief Justice Taschereau holds several honorary degrees and was created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor by France.

His elevation leaves one vacancy on the nine-member court.

A Montreal lawyer with wide business interests, Mr. Macnaughton is also former Crown prosecutor for the city and district of Montreal. He was the first opposition MP ever to serve as chairman of the Commons public accounts committee.

Mr. Macnaughton is a native of Napanee, Ont., and studied at Upper Canada College and McGill University. He is fluently bilingual and is well liked among Commons members.

Mr. Pearson and the premier should get together on policy or appoint someone to determine it on their behalf," he said, suggesting the senior government call the meeting.

He was commenting on a suggestion in Ottawa by Northern Affairs Minister Laing that the Columbia development be given top priority.

Mr. Williston saw in Mr. Laing's remarks a possibility that any changes in the treaty might be accomplished with an exchange of notes, rather than renegotiation.

Action Asked On Columbia

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Rusk has been urged to press the new Canadian government for early action on the long-stalled Columbia River power treaty.

The call came from Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who pleaded for swift Canadian ratification of the treaty or new negotiations.

Victorians Cool to TV

Percentage of Sets Lowest in 17 Cities

New statistics just released from the 1961 Canadian census show that Victoria is different in one field from the rest of Canada.

Of 17 major metropolitan areas across the nation, Greater Victoria and the adjacent Saanich Peninsula have the lowest percentage of television sets per number of homes. Capital Region Planning Board director Anthony Roberts said yesterday he had received the information in a census report entitled Living Conveniences.

The report was compiled from answers given by the one-out-of-ten persons queried by those conducting the census.

In Greater Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula, there were one or more TV sets in 37,533 dwelling units, representing 79 per cent of all the dwelling units in the area.

Of the other metropolitan areas, Sudbury had 80 per cent, Vancouver 82, Calgary 82, Edmonton 82, Halifax 85, Hamilton 84, Kitchener 84, London 85, Montreal 85, Ottawa 85, Quebec 89, St. John 87, St. John's 87, Toronto 85, Windsor 85 and Winnipeg 84.

DUNCAN — At a special meeting Monday night council decided to hold a public hearing for rezoning of property on Hospital Hill at the intersection of Cairnmore and Cowell where Timberline Structures Ltd. plans to erect a $150,000 apartment building. The company asked the council to rezone the property from "A" to "B" classification.

The building will be of mortar construction, will contain 18 suites and will have ample parking space for the tenants.

The Royal Canadian Legion, Cowichan Branch, requested an improvement of the corner at Bunkers and Trunk Road and the city will advise the Legion on 1963 plans for this corner.

Five bids for a new truck and six bids for a new backhoe were referred to the public works committee for further study.

Women Split in Court Driver Wins Acquittal

NANAIMO — Because two of the Wellington women who have been staging recent demonstrations at the intersection of the Jingle Pot-Island Highway could not agree in court Monday, a traffic charge against a woman driver was dismissed.

The two women, members of a committee pressing for an overpass at the intersection, were witnesses in the case against Beatrice Clara Freidholm of Nanaimo, charged with going through a red light at the intersection March 11.

Evidence from the two women as to the color of the car and the license number was conflicting. Magistrate Ralph Hutchinson said he appreciated the concern of the parents, but that proof of ownership in the case was not certain enough. He dismissed the charge.

On the stand one of the mothers explained that the committee has been escorting the children across the intersection because it feels the traffic light does not give adequate protection.

Tourist Season Opens With a Bang—in March

Vancouver Island tourist season, which normally starts in mid-May, opened with a bang early in March, commissioner William Hawkins said yesterday.

"It indicates there will be a large tourist business this year," he said.

Last year's tourist income for the island and the Gulf Island amounted to $82,000,000.

"Requests for information from our office in March were up 140 per cent above the same period last year, cars coming here by ferries in March were up about 45 per cent from the previous year," said Mr. Hawkins.

Mr. Hawkins said that publicity bureau advertising has been keyed to extension of the annual tourist season here.

Board Rejects Plan For Saanich Sewage

By JACK FREY

The B.C. pollution control board has rejected Saanich's application for permission to discharge treated sewage effluent into Colquitz Creek.

Official notification has yet to be received from the board, but municipal engineer Neville Life told Saanich health and welfare committee last night that the board had turned thumbs down on a proposed $1,700,000 sewage scheme for the southwestern part of the municipality.

Coun. Joseph Casey, angry that health officials did not provide specifications about what degree of purity would be acceptable to the pollution control board, did not give up the fight.

"If we put pure water in there, I don't see how they can stop us," he told the committee.

Delay Coincidental

"We've been waiting 10 days for a decision on this. I think it is no coincidence that the delay coincides with the opening of the Vancouver system," he said.

Reeve Murphy told a Colonist reporter that, while "I have no complaint about their verdict, I do object that they have offered us no alternatives which are within the reach of the taxpayers concerned."

Taxpayers in the municipality cannot afford the burden of a more expensive system such as an underground tunnel to the sea, and as a result of the board's decision,

"septic tank pollution in that area will continue," he said.

"Sewage pollution concerns all of Greater Victoria and the organized areas," and should be solved through combined efforts of the various municipal governments, Reeve Murphy said.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and Reeve A. C. Wurtelle indicated that Victoria and Esquimalt might be interested in studying the problem further, but Reeve George Murdoch said he thought each municipality should stand on its own feet and provide the necessary services for its people.

On Basis of Areas

"If one believes in concerted effort in the community, which I do, then any of these problems should be considered on an area basis," said Mayor Wilson.

Reeve Wurtelle said, "My council agrees all the municipalities must get together and look into this. We should decide what the sewage problem is and what to do about it."

He felt that the problem was too large for the intermunicipal committee to cope with, and that Saanich which would derive much of the benefit from such a scheme should be prepared to bear the lion's portion of the expense.

Reeve Murdoch said: "I can't speak for the people of Oak Bay directly, but I think that a municipality should stand on its own feet."

"We are practically fully sewered and in good shape, and we have no major sewage problems," said Mr. Murdoch.

Mr. Life said the committee that Saanich had spent about $30,000 on the proposed sewage scheme.

But, the mayor said, that the city has been rebuffed in many times that it is ironic that a sewage problem could bring the areas together.

Uniform Fees For Dogs Under Study

Setting up of uniform dog licence fees and regulations for Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt is under consideration by the intermunicipal committee.

It was agreed yesterday that Saanich, which employs its poundkeeper and collects its own licence fees, should not be included in the bid for uniformity.

The three other municipalities employ the SPCA for licensing and impounding of dogs, whereas Saanich only uses the society's pound facilities for dogs it has picked up.

Reeve A. C. Wurtelle said Esquimalt was most anxious to obtain uniformity.

"My council feels that it is stupid that the rate for dog licences should be set in each of the three municipalities, as it is at present," Reeve Wurtelle said.

"We feel that this committee is the logical place for representatives of Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to decide on a scale of fees which we would recommend to our respective councils."

The committee endorsed Mayor R. B. Wilson's suggestion that the first step would be to compile fees and regulations now in effect in the three municipalities for study and comparison.

The data will be sent to the respective municipal councils before the matter is discussed more fully at the intermunicipal level.

Coun. Allan Cox said Oak Bay had only recently discussed licence fees with the SPCA and "after much heated discussion" finally accepted the society's recommended scale.

He added that in Oak Bay SPCA representatives had also been granted permission "on a trial basis" to canvass from door-to-door in an effort to ensure all dogs were licensed.

"They will not be dunning," said Coun. Cox, adding that the same method used elsewhere had not resulted in "bad public reaction."

Vacancy For Cruise

When the moon strikes noon Sunday a 78-foot yacht will slip away from the Oak Bay dock.

The Blue Ford will sail up Vancouver Island's west coast, around her northern end, and back down the east coast home to Victoria.

Blue Ford was chartered by sales representative J. T. Graham, 1891 Richardson, and a majority of those going will be sales agents looking for hard-to-reach markets.

ROOM FOR MORE

She will carry 10 passengers and Mr. Graham says there is room for another two or three, not necessarily for a business trip.

There is still a cabin available — and another woman aboard would be company for the one who's doing the cooking.

Anyone interested is asked to telephone Mr. Graham at 383-7722 during the day, or at 383-5841 after 6 p.m.

Apartment Block Started

Construction will begin next week on a $300,000 three-story court-type apartment block on Esquimalt Road.

The block, to contain 67 suites, is being built by former Vancouver contractor John Capp and will have a modern marine look to the exterior.

MOVE ONTO SITE

Building permit for the apartment was issued yesterday and bulldozers immediately moved onto the site across from Esquimalt Shopping Centre.

Actual building is expected to start next week and continue through until the end of November.

SWIMMING POOL

A year-round heated swimming pool will be built on the apartment site. One hundred per cent off street parking will be provided.

The building's 67 suites will be of the one and two-bedroom variety.

There will be five lofts located in the building and an elevator service will be provided.

The building will have a special finish on the exterior which will give it a modern marine-like look, the builder told the Colonist last night.

Bate Given School Job

COURTENAY — Victoria contractor Herb Bate's bid of $71,916 to build the six-room Balnoral School was approved by school trustees here.

The amount of the tender has been approved by the department of education. The building will be completed by August.

Trustees also received tenders from Courtenay all companies with Shell the low bidder with 15.37 cents per gallon, or about six cents below the domestic rate now paid. The bids will be studied before a decision is made.

Estate Set At $60,369

Estate of Adolf Brachat, former brewmaster at the Silver Springs Brewery, was valued at $60,369.

This was disclosed when the will was probated at Victoria Courthouse. Mr. Brachat died March 5 at 88. The money was bequeathed to children and grandchildren.

Bigger the Fewer

By M. V. CHESNUT, FIRM

I was standing in front of a florist shop the other day admiring some enormous spikes of greenhouse-grown snapdragons in the window when a friend came up and tapped me on the shoulder.

"How in heaven's name do they ever grow them that big?" he asked. "I grow snaps in our garden every year, but they never get to be more than two feet tall."

It is quite possible and not too difficult to grow giant snapdragons in the garden with spikes up to five feet tall, but it is necessary to have an entirely different approach to their culture—a different mental take-off, so to speak.

In the ordinary course of events, snapdragons are not grown for their individual blooms but for their overall massed effect. Our aim is to produce a continuous succession of bloom over the whole season.

To accomplish this, the tips are snipped off the plants when they are set out in their beds in the spring, whereupon they sprout side shoots from every leaf joint, each one of which produces a short-stemmed spike of bloom. We deliberately hold down the height of the plant to secure a forest of bloom.

To grow giant spikes, the whole process is reversed. It must be clearly understood that such cultivation means "a short life and a merry one" for the plants. You get just one spike of bloom per plant, and when that spike is finished—boom! No more snaps.

To get one immense spike means that only one stem is allowed to grow—the same idea as cordon sweet peas or staked tomatoes. Branches are ruthlessly suppressed. The top isn't pinched out but is encouraged to grow on and up, but every side shoot appearing in the leaf axils is nipped off as it forms.

If you are buying plants to set out and grow in this fashion, make sure you get a naturally tall-growing variety such as Maximus or Sky-scraper, so most of the snap sold for bedding out are semi-tall or dwarf. If side shoots have already formed, don't take them all off at once but remove a few every day so as to cause less shock to the plants.

Don't forget that these single-stemmed plants have to be staked and tied carefully or the wind will break them. Spacing should be about 14 inches apart, with a slim five-foot stake set in place before the plant tip has reached the two-foot mark.

To obtain tall, prize-winning spikes and big, well-formed florets, plant on manured ground and feed heavily with a soluble highest fertilizer in water. Once every third week give each plant three pints of lime water, made by "crazing" three heaping tablespoons of hydrated lime in a bowl with a little hot water and working it with the back of a spoon, then stirring this into a six-quart watering can of water.

Some of the best very tall varieties for this type of culture are Apple Blossom, pink and white; Canary, yellow; Fireflake, golden orange; Ruby, deep red; Snowflake, soft creamy white, and Walkflower, coppery crimson.

At the other end of the scale are the Hybrid Sprites, new this year. These tiny snaps start blooming when only eight inches tall, then branch out to make a plant never more than 15 inches high and so uniform in height they look as if they had been sheared like a hedge.

ART BUCHWALD Sees Other Uses for 'Hot Line'

They Need Each Other

Kennedy, Khrushchev Have Common Problems

WASHINGTON — Every time things get quiet, or comparatively quiet, between East and West, the rumors start flying that Khrushchev is on his way out and that there is a new struggle in the Kremlin for power.

In the United States when things quiet down, the rumors have it that President Kennedy will have no chance at getting through his program, and he is certain of being cut down on all his requests.

The sad fact, whether they like it or not, is that Khrushchev needs Kennedy and Kennedy needs Khrushchev and we wouldn't be surprised if the "hot line" between Moscow and Washington serves a purpose other than to prevent accidental war.

We can see, in the not-so-distant future, this conversation taking place between the two heads of state:

"Mr. Khrushchev, I'm sorry to bother you, but I was wondering when you were planning to send another man in orbit. I'm having a helluva time getting space funds. Is there any chance of getting a Russian up in space in the next two months?"

"We've been trying, but we've had some setbacks. You haven't been helping me much, you know, by postponing Cooper's flight. I'm having difficulty on funds also."

"I'm sorry about Cooper, Mr. Khrushchev, but we've had trouble with our booster. If you could send two or three men up right now, I'll do something spectacular for you when your next budget comes up."

"I'll see what I can do, Mr. Kennedy. By the way, you would be helping me quite a bit if you announced you were going to ring the Soviet Union with Polar submarines."

"I've announced we were giving Polar missiles to our NATO forces. Isn't that enough?"

"Make it a little stronger." "I don't want to go overboard."

"May I remind you, Mr. Kennedy, that if it weren't for Soviet troops in Cuba you would be having a great deal of trouble with your military appropriations. If you're not willing to help me on the submarine, I might be forced to withdraw all my troops from Cuba."

"No, don't do that, Mr. Khrushchev. But as long as we're asking favors I'd like to point out to you that because of the Communist failure to submit many neutral countries I doubt if I'll get my foreign aid bill through this year."

"I'll admit we haven't been doing so well there, but you haven't helped me much by continuing the disarmament talks. They cut my atomic energy program by 10 million rubles because of your compromise on on-site inspections."

"I'm sorry about that, Mr. Khrushchev. But I was sure you wouldn't agree to them, anyway, so I went ahead with the proposal."

"Well, I wish you'd check with me first, Mr. Kennedy. Oh, by the way, we're announcing a new anti-missile missile which will go into production in the fall."

"I'm happy to hear it. Our anti-missile missile program has been lagging and this will certainly give it a good job in the arm. Thanks a lot."

"Don't mention it. I'm having trouble though getting authorization for some more ground divisions. Could you possibly have your Gen. Taylor make a speech about brushfire wars again?"

Being President Has Compensations, says CHARLES McDOWELL

Cat, Kids, Car, Milk Not His Worry

A lady of our acquaintance feels sorry for the Kennedys because the president's departure is so often delayed when he is going off on a weekend trip, or longer vacation, with his wife and children. They leave ahead of the president and he follows in another plane after cleaning up his work at the office.

When this happens, the whole family misses the fun of traveling together, the lady says, and this is no small penalty to pay for living in the White House.

No doubt the lady has point, but somehow we don't feel as deeply about it as she does. Where family travel is concerned, we can think of several compensating advantages to living in the White House.

The Kennedys, when they are taking the children to visit their grandparents or on an outing to the mountains or the beach, don't have to worry about finding someone to come in and feed the cat and check on the new kittens.

Mr. Kennedy is spared the severe duty of leading the car, and doing it in such a way that each child has a place to lie down and there is at least one place where a child can be isolated from any other child. He is likewise spared the discovery that he hasn't left a space for the diaper pail, and has the whole puzzle to take apart and put back together again.

Cartop carriers are not a part of Mr. Kennedy's life. This is a good thing because anyone who has to deal with cartop carriers is not a good emotional risk for running a country.

Our guess would be that Mrs. Kennedy is spared having to remember to take along a damp washcloth for wiping peanut butter and jelly off the upholstery.

As they leave the White House, the Kennedys do not, we trust, have to make an inspection tour to verify that the windows are closed, the furnace and water heater cut back, and that no cigarettes are smoldering in ashtrays.

We like to think also that they do not have to go through the hackneyed business of looking at each other and realizing that nobody remembered to cancel the milk.

Since they and the children don't wedge themselves into the family car in the first place, neither parent has to arbitrate the question of who sits where, and neither parent has to get out of the car a second time to leave the key in the mailbox for the neighbor's daughter who has agreed to feed the cat and check on the kittens.

Mr. Kennedy is spared the embarrassment of not having had the car serviced the night before, and at the neighborhood service station, the humiliation in front of his family of not remembering how much pressure he carries in his tires.

Massive Problem Facing Canadians

NANAIMO—Canadians face a massive problem in preventing the social upheaval which could follow the technological revolution we are now living through, vocational guidance director Philip Kitley said in Nanaimo Monday night.

Mr. Kitley, provincial director of education and vocational guidance, said that matching students to the 25,000 different jobs now available is an almost impossible task for educators, to say nothing of the many new jobs to be created in the future through technological advances.

The ex-director of school broadcasts for CBC was addressing more than 60 Nanaimo residents involved in planning the Career Exposition Night to be held in Nanaimo May 1.

NANAIMO—A letter from a Nanaimo real estate firm interfering that large companies can exercise pressure on council drew fire from city aldermen Monday night.

M. G. Zorkin & Company Ltd., in seeking a second hearing on its application for rezoning of property on Nicol St., to make way for a radio and television store, stated in a letter to council:

"It would appear that the planning board is waiting for a larger corporation to bring pressure for a date to rezoning while

"Remember," said Mr. Kitley, "the social upheaval which followed the renaissance? Remember the social upheaval which was the legacy of the industrial revolution?"

He said that a tremendous effort, and a great deal more information about people, is needed to prepare for the aftermath of the technological revolution.

"NEVER SO HUMBLE"
"Never before in history have psychologists been so humble for only now have they reached the stage where they realize how little they know of such a complex subject," said Mr. Kitley.

He said that aptitude tests are a long way from being the answer to determining the career a student should enter.

the writer of the letter was in error in saying that larger companies can exercise pressure on council.

Ald. Douglas Greer said he took exception to the letter. "There is always an open door as far as the planning commission is concerned. In this particular instance no representative of the company was on hand when the application was considered," he said.

Alberni Mayor Raps Grant

ALBERNI—"Robbing Peter to pay Paul" is Mayor Fred Bishop's opinion of the home-owner grant policy.

He made the comment while discussing the rise in school costs to municipalities.

In this district, $1,394,114 of the $2,044,768 school budget is to be raised by the three component parts of the district. Alberni's share is $65,208; Port Alberni's, $863,158, and the rural areas, $336,747.

Mayor Bishop said, "In common, I am sure, with all municipal councils, I am disturbed by this year's greatly increased education costs. Councils have little or no control over this expenditure which is the largest item in our budget."

"Year by year school costs rise. For a number of years we have absorbed these increases by cutting other departmental budgets that we do control. The provincial department of education's policy determines how much we must raise for education. Because councils have practically no control over this expenditure municipalities contend that the provincial government should assume a larger share of the costs."

"Alberni must levy 2.98 mills extra for school purposes in 1963. I would urge that all committees pare their estimates as much as practical in view of this increase. However, it is unlikely that all of the 2.98 mills can be absorbed by reducing our general works program and other services. It would be necessary to cut our program to almost maintenance only."

"The provincial government sometimes refers to the home-owner grant as municipal aid. It certainly cannot be termed such when the municipality gets no part of it. Many taxpayers do not get the grant and so any city tax increase is a hardship on those paying taxes on rented and business property. . . .

"By giving the home-owner grant on one hand and then forcing city councils to raise taxes because of inadequate grants, the provincial policy seems to be one of robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Surplus Shown

PORT ALBERNI—A surplus of $17,685.52 for the year 1962 was reported by Ald. F. G. Weaver at Port Alberni council meeting Monday.

He pointed out that, with a budget of $1,253,000, this represented fairly close estimating. Mayor Loran Jordan remarked that one good snowfall in December would have eliminated the surplus.

During the meeting, council passed accounts totalling $109,758 of which $64,000 was for educational purposes.

Truce Team Going To Plain

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The International Control Commission, barred from operating within lines of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, plans to send a truce team today or Thursday to the neutralist side in the troubled Plain des Jarres.

Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma announced Tuesday this one-sided effort for peace. The neutralist leader said the commission's observers—representing Canada, India and Poland—can at least see "who is firing the rifle shots."

LAKE IN SHOOTING

There has been a 48-hour lull in the shooting, but heavier fighting threatened. Rightist Gen. Phoumi Nosavan said he would send his regulars into action as allies of the outnumbered neutralists if the Pathet Lao completed its conquest of the plain, a strategic plateau 110 miles north of Vientiane, the Laos capital.

BATTALIONS DROPPED

The Pathet Lao broadcast from the interior asserted that two of Phoumi's crack paratroop battalions had been dropped in the Plain des Jarres area Monday and Tuesday.

Other developments Tuesday:

- Units of the mighty U.S. 7th Fleet were reported moving to the South China Sea area off the Gulf of Siam as a precaution against a Communist takeover of the tiny jungle kingdom.

- U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, after from urgent consultations with French authorities about the Laotian situation, sped to London for similar talks with the British.

- The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said the British have rejected a Russian proposal that Britain join the Soviet Union in charging the U.S. with fanning tension in Laos.

- Military consultations were pursued at headquarters of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Bangkok, Thailand.

- The U.S. attack carrier Thetis was two days out of Manila Bay on an unannounced mission.

Troops Wound Students

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Heavily-armed Bedouin troops Tuesday fired on students demonstrating against King Hussein in the heart of Amman.

European witnesses said at least two youths were wounded in the encounters, which apparently erupted when the students stoned the troops.

The firing came as the desert-toughened units chased hundreds of screaming students who were trying to organize riots in favor of United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Biculturalism Top Issue

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. A. W. Trueman, director of the Canada Council, said Tuesday night that "the overhauling of the constitution" to reconcile the English and French elements is the top issue facing Canada.

"It is my considered opinion that we cannot go on any longer as we are," he told the University Women's Club of Toronto. "I believe that the major issue that confronts Canada today is . . . the reconciling of the French and English elements in our population and the overhauling of the constitution in relation to that problem."

Dr. Trueman said constitutional reform is more important than issues such as unemployment, the general position of the economy—important though these issues are.

The unsatisfactory relations between the two language groups resulted from faults on both sides, but today it was the responsibility of the English to make the next move.

We decide ourselves if we think we can shrug it off as I am inclined to think we have shrugged it off for nearly 200 years.

Dr. Trueman said the constitution should apply in practice the concept of Canadian society as a "mosaic"—each major ethnic and religious group retaining its identity. The American "melting pot" concept would not work in Canada.

Jimmy Crow Visits the Taylors

Pet Crow Better Not

By JACK FREY

Spanish police will have to get up early in the morning if they want to shoot a crow which allegedly has been bothering neighborhood children on Homer Road.

One-year-old Jim Crow, who sleeps in the basement at 230 Homer, is a mighty suspicious little character at the best of times.

It took a Colonist photographer 20 minutes yesterday to get the crow into a picture, and Jim Crow might fly a lot faster if he sees a pistol-packing policeman.

Mrs. John Taylor, at whose home the crafty black bird lives, said yesterday that the police came knocking at their door because neighbors complained the bird was a nuisance.

"The police said if they had any more complaints they would come and shoot him. I feel very annoyed about it," she said.

"I don't mind other people having pets, why should they care about him? I don't want him to hurt anyone but I know he won't go to strangers, and I believe in 'live and let live,'" Mrs. Taylor said.

Jim Crow has been a pet of

the Taylor family all of his short life. He plays catch with pebbles, with the three Taylor children, Gary 7, Ian 11 and Dennis 19, and he rides in the younger boy's wagon and follows them to school.

He sleeps on the rafters in the basement of the Taylor home until 9 a.m. each day, then watches through one of the windows at mealtimes and pecks on the glass for someone to open the front door.

He frequently cleans up the scraps from the dinner plates, sometimes makes a mess on the furniture and stands on the kitchen sink water spout for a drink of water.

Jim Crow is fond of baby food but is not a fussy eater, and he drinks water, milk, root beer and well-sugared tea.

Leader 66

Mike's Birthday: Two Cakes, Toil

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson celebrated his 66th birthday Tuesday with a full day's work and two birthday cakes in his new office.

The Liberal leader presided at a two-hour morning cabinet meeting and emerged to announce formation of a special cabinet committee to tackle trade, economics and employment questions. He will be its chairman.

SECOND DAY

In the second day of his promised "90 days of decision" for the new Liberal government, Mr. Pearson also announced:

1. A royal commission on biculturalism will be set up "with the least possible delay."
2. He plans to confer with Prime Minister Macmillan in London next week, and a week after his return he hopes to meet President Kennedy. While overseas, he hopes to spend at least one night with Canadian forces in Europe.

STARTS EARLY

It was up and to work early for Mr. Pearson on his first full day as prime minister. He was at the East Block and behind the desk vacated Monday by Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker before most of the prime minister's office staff arrived.

His first telephone call was to government house, to convey birthday greetings to Governor-General Vanier through the Governor-General's secretary, Edmund Butler. Both Gen. Vanier, 75, and Mr. Pearson were born on St. George's Day.

Mr. Pearson then was visited by Viscount Amory, British high commissioner to Canada. Lord Amory had a message from Prime Minister Macmillan welcoming Mr. Pearson's proposed trip to London, expected to take place after Mr. Pearson speaks in Toronto next Tuesday to the annual banquet of The Canadian Press.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT

As is customary, the composition of the new cabinet committee on economics and employment was not announced. It was understood, however, that the principal members are Finance Minister Walter Gordon, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, Labor Minister Allan J. Rock, and Privy Council President Maurice Lamontagne.

WORK TOGETHER

Noting that he will be flying to London in a few days to meet Prime Minister Macmillan, Mr. Pearson said he wants to discuss ways in which Canada and Britain "can work together to improve the trading relations and the political relations of the free countries of the world."

Of his subsequent visit to Washington, Mr. Pearson said Canada can do much together for mutual benefit and for the benefit of the world.

"I want to make sure that the two governments understand each other."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday night he welcomes the challenges that lie ahead of him and his new Liberal government.

"It will not be an easy time but it will, I pledge you, be a time to excite the daring, to test the strong and to give new promise to the timid," he said in an address broadcast the day after assuming office.

Mr. Pearson, noting that his government lacks a majority of Commons seats, said he is resolved not to allow this "to influence the government in any way that will weaken its action for you."

NOT AVOID ISSUES

"We will not be seeking to evade any issues, to avoid any votes in Parliament. We will not be seeking any special deals. We will breach no trust, barter no principles."

Reviewing the period ahead for Parliament, which meets May 14, Mr. Pearson promised to have legislation ready to provide a framework within which Canadians can work to improve prosperity, increase employment and production and create better opportunities and greater security.

TAKING ACTION

"Above all, we will be taking action to heal the strains and tensions within our country," he said.

"The axis of our nation is the partnership of English- and French-Canadians on which our federal system was founded."

He paid a special tribute to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, saying "Mr. Diefenbaker has served Canada for many years with patriotic devotion." He wished him well in his new role as opposition leader.

The new government, he said, asks the understanding, co-operation and prayers of Canadians, pledging "to do everything we can, in every way we can, to protect and promote your true interests."

DO WHAT IS BEST

He added: "A government cannot achieve that purpose merely by doing what will produce the most obvious results today. . . . We have to do what is best for today but also what will contribute most to the long-term well-being and progress of our country—dealing with problems before they become crises; seizing opportunities before they disappear."

"We have to do what is best for today but also what will contribute most to the long-term well-being and progress of our country—dealing with problems before they become crises; seizing opportunities before they disappear."

B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Williston Tuesday proposed a meeting between Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Pearson to speed hydro development of the Columbia River.

"Mr. Pearson and the premier should get together on policy or appoint someone to determine it on their behalf," he said, suggesting the senior government call the meeting.

He was commenting on a suggestion in Ottawa by Northern Affairs Minister Laing that the Columbia development be given top priority.

Mr. Williston saw in Mr. Laing's remarks a possibility that any changes in the treaty might be accomplished with an exchange of notes, rather than renegotiation.

TASCHEREAU

MACNAUGHTON

Taschereau Appointed Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP)—Robert Taschereau, 66, judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, was appointed Tuesday as chief justice of Canada.

Also on Tuesday, Prime Minister Pearson nominated Alan Macnaughton, 59, Liberal MP for Montreal Mount Royal, as Commons Speaker for the 26th Parliament.

Chief Justice Taschereau succeeded Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin who died Feb. 2 after leading the court since July 1, 1954.

The new chief justice had been next in seniority, appointed to the Supreme Court Feb. 9, 1940. He is a native of Quebec City, educated at Quebec Seminary and Laval University, and admitted to the bar July 8, 1920.

He practiced law in Quebec until his Ottawa appointment. Honorary secretary of the Canadian Bar Association from 1934 to 1941, Chief Justice Taschereau holds several honorary degrees and was created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor by France.

His elevation leaves one vacancy on the nine-member court.

A Montreal lawyer with wide business interests, Mr. Macnaughton is also former Crown prosecutor for the city and district of Montreal. He was the first opposition MP ever to serve as chairman of the Commons public accounts committee.

Mr. Macnaughton is a native of Nanaimo, Ont., and studied at Upper Canada College and McGill University. He is currently bilingual and is well liked among Commons members.

Action Asked On Columbia

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Rusk has been urged to press the new Canadian government for early action on the long-stalled Columbia River power treaty.

The call came from Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who pleaded for swift Canadian ratification of the treaty or new negotiations.

Queen Goes Pubbing

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth went pubbing and young Londoners did the twist to while away last night's hours to today's wedding of Princess Alexandra to Hon. Angus Ogilvy.

Out from Windsor Castle went the Queen, Prince Philip and 51 guests, all piled into two buses to wind through picturesque Berkshire countryside.

Destination for the party, most of them of European royal or former royal families, was the Hind's Head Inn at Bray. There they had cocktails, fresh lobster, roast lamb, treacle tart with fresh cream, cheese and coffee.

Space around Westminster Abbey, meanwhile, was already at a premium.

Besides youngsters who "twisted" the hours away, small children and middle-aged housewives staked claims on vantage-points for the wedding procession.

Not all were Londoners, nor even natives of these Isles. First on the scene was Mrs. Lyall Ramsay of Sydney, Australia.

What of the couple for whose wedding they're assembled?

Princess Alexandra and her fiancé were just too busy with last-minute preparations. They had to miss the royal bus ride.

They missed, too, the offer of King Olav of Norway to help Queen Elizabeth remove from her thumb a rose thorn garnered from a bouquet presented to her at the inn. Her Majesty managed alone.

Grade 10 Education For Police Favored

Women Dismayed At A-Plans

MONTREAL (CP)—The Voice of Women says it notes "with deep dismay" that the Canadian government is preparing the people for immediate acceptance of nuclear weapons.

The group said in a statement Tuesday night that acceptance of nuclear arms would limit Canada's foreign policy and lose the confidence of neutral and uncommitted nations.

There have been demonstrations outside Canadian embassies "in many of the world's capitals" urging Canada to refuse nuclear weapons, the statement said.

CALGARY (CP)—Grade 10 should remain the minimum education requirement for policemen, police chiefs from western Canadian cities have decided at their sixth annual meeting.

"We decided against Grade 11 because quite often a man applies for a job with latent ability for police work but possessing only a Grade 10 education," said Chief Larry Partridge of Calgary, spokesman for the group.

EDUCATE HIMSELF

"We feel that if he is given a chance he will educate himself and make an excellent officer."

Most of the 32 delegates agreed Monday that two-way radios would increase the efficiency of beat policemen.

Chief Partridge said tests have shown radios save time for the officer on the street. They are being used by the Vancouver police force.

RESERVE URGED

The chiefs also suggested a reserve force to augment permanent police.

Chief Partridge of Calgary said there was "a lot of discussion" about the idea, raised by Chief Ralph Booth of Vancouver.

Chief Partridge explained that the Vancouver police chief referred to a citizen's reserve. In Vancouver, he said, the police force is working toward taking over the civil defense unit and using it as a police force to augment regular police for such events as parades.
